EDITORIAL BRIEFS

ROBERT RAY HAMILTON called to see his wife who is now in prison and the scene is described as quite affecting.

A MISSIONARY institute has been opened in Boston, the special object of which is to equip missionaries for the foreign or home fields.

A NEGRO named Mollison has been nominated by Republicans for Mississippi's Lieutenant Governor. It is to be hoped that Mr. Mullison's life is insured.

EDISON is perhaps more honored than any other single exhibitor at the Paris Exposition. The Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor has been conferred upon him.

WELL, well; is it true that none of the masters of vessels are willing to carry Fred Douglass to Hayti because Fred is a Negro? Fred is better than a majority of them.

NURIE MARY DONNELLY, who is conspicuous merely because she was stabbed by Mrs. R. Ray Hamilton, is about to exhibit herself in a dime museum at a salary of $150 per week.

THE friends of Marie Nevins Blaine, wife of James G. Blaine, Jr., say they consider his treatment of her very shameful and profess that they do not want to talk of it, but they succeed most skillfully in keeping her name in the papers all the time.

GOVERNOR BEAVER has telegraphed Major Foresman, of Williamsport, that that city will receive $15,000 of the flood fund and can govern himself accordingly. We believe it to be a truth that in actual property loss by the flood that along the West Branch Valley exceeded the loss at Johnstown.

SOME papers quote Secretary Noble as level-headed on the pension question because he says he is in favor of "every soldier getting a pension who deserves one under the law." We think the Secretary should go further and admit that there may and should be even better laws on the subject—laws which will yet further favor the soldier.

THERE is trouble reported in the ranks of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Pennsylvania, and it is said that Mrs. Swift, the President, will resign next month, giving as reason for withdrawing from the organization that the Prohibition party is absorbing it. The State Convention meets in Philadelphia on October 9th, and then Mrs. Swift will lay down the reins. She has already withdrawn from the Swift Union, the first to be organized in the State, and her determination is declared to be unchangeable, as she cannot endorse any organization that becomes part of a political party.

THE earnings of the Pennsylvania Railroad for August were the largest of any month in its history. In August, 1888, they were $5,390,000. The earnings for last August will probably reach five and a half millions. The great railroad never was more prosperous than it is to-day, and the increase of business is so great that the enormous resources or the company are constantly taxed to furnish cars sufficient to move the passenger and freight traffic without delay. This is a good indication of general business prosperity over the country and it is hoped it may continue through the coming autumn and winter.

EUROPEAN CORRESPONDENCE.

A Delightful Letter Written from Homburg by Mrs. L. L. Ormsby.

Special Letter to the Bellefonte Republican.

Americans everywhere, and this justly celebrated German Spa is no exception. This little town was full two weeks ago, and crowds have been coming in on every train since that time; where they have been put is a mystery—stored away in closets, cupboards, and servants bedrooms, no doubt.

Aside from its own manifold attractions, this place is full of celebrities—Royal Princes; the Bismarks, mother and son; Dukes and Lords; to say nothing of the M. P's and lesser lights, some that have honored their country, and others that their country has honored. But that "the Englishman dearly loves a Lord" is as true of the German. We do not view royalty in the same light as this people; have no time-honored associations connecting us with the past; but we have as much curiosity as any other and will endure jostling and crowding to obtain a glimpse of a Prince.

Every thing is done by the charge-de-affairs to add to the pleasure and entertainment of the visitor; music, balls, concerts, fetes and illuminations.

There are many charming excursions in the vicinity. One is to the Saalburg, ruins of an old Roman Camp. What gives an special interest to these ruins is, that it is one of the few Roman Camps from which the archaeologists have been able to determine with any degree of certainty the military life of the Romans.

There is a museum in the Kursal containing many interesting objects found there, numerous coins bearing date from Marc Antony 40 B. C. to 270 A. D.

The springs of course are the attraction. There are five of them situated in a large park. The Elizabeth, it is claimed, contains more carbonic acid than any other saline spring known.

The Stahl or steel spring tastes much like the Columbian at Saratoga, perhaps a little more salt.

I was told that one of the sights of Homburg was the Elizabeth s ring in early morning. I reached there about 7.30. The water drinkers would each take their glass of hot salt water walking, sipping, and talking, the band discoursing sweet music in the meantime, which may have had a tendency to make this nauseous dose more palatable. Young girls with fresh rosy faces that no doubt take a morning nap when at home; what are they here for unless to prove they only need an excuse for early rising; and the young men are here for some other strange reason, for, be it said, the young men are much more plentiful here than in our summer resorts. I hope this paragraph will not set young lady readers to teasing mon pere to come to Homburg.

American girls are having everything their own way, it is said, and certainly, if grace, beauty, and aesthetic dressing not to speak of just a little flirting which is almost absolutely necessary in a foreign ball room, why we may say we have rather more than an average representation. German officers make good ball room partners, but I am glad for the young ladie's sake they can not take them home, as a German Officer can not marry unless he marries a fortune, and there is something revolting to an American mind in asking a woman to come forward with a stipulated sum to be taken on approval. It is only the English girl that seems to come in competition with the American, the French girl being very retiring, and does not dance much. Gretchen brings her lover with her, which leaves the English speaking people on a common ground. There are some very pretty English girls here; much finer complexions and smaller waists than our girls.

I heard an English girl say "she wished their country had a duty on American girls"—a good bon mot considering that their country is over-run with the latter, not altogether on "sight-seeing intent." To a looker-on, one English girl is a type of every other, even to the stiff, unbecoming sailor hat. This hat is very pretty on a Miss, and very convenient, no doubt, but who ever heard of an American girl wearing an unbecoming hat because it was serviceable.

Like all towns in this country, Homburg has its old Schloss, or Castle, now occupied by the Empress Frederick. Visiting here are several foreign Prince and Princess Christine and daughters. The Princess Christine is very short and stout and when she walks wobbling is the only word that describes it.

The sisters of the German Emperor were pointed out to me on the tennis grounds, their appearance reminding me of a description given of them by an English girl: "Most extraordinary ordinary looking girls." What a stupid time they must have, so hedged in by etiquette and formality, no one dare go forward to speak to them, and the vulgar crowd often stare them out of countenance. The Empress is very much beloved here, but she can not be very happy. The papers say that she was so incensed about the Emperor's visit to England that she would allow no one to speak of it in her presence.

Like all old castles, this looks very gloomy with its small windows, but has a lofty tower, a pretty garden laid out by Elizabeth, daughter of George III; extensive grounds with fine walks and views towards the Taunus range of mountains.

According to newspaper reports, the Prince of Wales has all the ills that flesh is heir to, such as gout in the eyes, dyspepsia, a swelled leg caused by a varieose vein; and they do not forget to add that he is having a high time, a strange contradiction.

I sat near him at a concert and failed to see anything of this broken up condition except that he walks with difficulty, the swollen leg being a verity, but it is said he does not want sympathy or to be thought ill.

There are some customs here I would like to see introduced into our country, and one of them is a more rational way of spending our holidays. The Summer life here is almost entirely out of doors. Lawn tennis, cricket and picnics necesitate the wearing of plain, sensible clothes; no strife or display, no necessity to change the dress more than once a day. Some ladies told me they had not unpacked their dresses; they said they were "too smart" for Homburg.

Ladies promenade or sit through the concert, go into the ball room with wool, silk or lace dresses, long-sleeved high-necked, dance an hour or two, and, so prudent and sensible are they, that this gaiety may be kept up for a whole season without the weariness and disgust that many of the habitues feel after a season at Saratoga or Newport. Then, another custom is the tea-drinking, and this includes the young folks. The English understand how to improvise a little fete with nothing more costly than a cup of tea, and the mother makes one of the party and joins in the little jokes and delightful nonsense that are inseparable from youth, and, in so doing, gets many hints and helps to aid her in the guidance and directing of her children.

The weather is cold and wet and much like autumn, and our padrone says that in another week or two everyone will be going as fast as they can get away. Then the card "lodgings to let," will be taken in, matting rolled up, and the householder will sit down and count up the gains, after which all will be quiet until another season rolls around.

We feel like turning our steps homeward, but must first see the great Exposition. Beautiful Paris, with all her fountains, electric lights, band, and flowers will not down the sense of weariness one feels in an attempt to see this great show. We have put off the evil day as long as possible, in fact have been on all sides of Paris in the last six months, but are now braced up to give this great undertaking a trial, and expect like a certain man that went from Jerusalem down to Jericho, to meet the same fate.

Rosalind—Well, this is the forest of Arden.

Touchstone—Ay, now am I in Arden, the more fool I, when I was at home I was in a better place, but travelers must be content.

[As you like it.]

MRS. L. L. ORMSBY,
Homburg, Aug. 30, 1889.

ONE TENTH of our American population could find the means of a livelihood in one county of Montana. It is Chester county and contains 36,000 square miles. It is larger in extent than 9 or 10 of our older States. Its extent is greater than the States of Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont. One-tenth of our population could reside in that county and then it would not be so populous as Belgium. Chester county is the largest county in the United States. Think of one county embracing 36,000 square miles of land.

AN APPEAL FOR AID BY THE JOHNSTOWN BOARD OF EDUCATION.

As we are very anxious that the people of this place shall aid the Johnstown School District, and others in that flooded country, we insert the following appeal which shows the exact condition of affairs there:

As the Board of Education of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, we beg leave to present for your consideration the following statement of facts touching the educational interests of our city. We do this in the hope that you may feel justified in extending to us the aid necessary to open our schools and provide educational facilities for our children.

The terrible destruction of property and the bitter suffering of our people by the flood of May 31st render it impossible for us to secure, by means of taxation, the money required to maintain our school during the current year.

No portion of the money which has been so generously contributed by a sympathetic public can be used for public school purposes, as it will be exhausted in supplying the immediate and pressing wants of our stricken people.

We have appealed to the Governor of our State for assistance, but whilst admitting the necessities of our position, he yet does not feel that he possesses the authority to apply to our relief any part of the educational appropriation of the Commonwealth.

During the past year we had thirty-six schools, thirty-eight teachers, and an enrollment of nineteen hundred and thirteen pupils. The expense of maintaining the schools for this period was in round numbers $23,000. At the opening of the approaching school term we shall have eighteen hundred children for whom school accommodations and educational facilities must be provided. Some of our school buildings were destroyed, others are seriously damaged, and we have not the money with which to build or repair. There is, in addition to our loss, a bonded indebtedness of 12,000, which, with our reduced valuation through destruction of property, will bring our indebtedness up to the limit allowed by the Constitution.

To supply the needful accomodations and provide the necessary teaching force will require, for the year an expenditure of not less than $25,000. This money we cannot secure by taxation or loans, and, as we have exhausted every other resource known to us, we now appeal to the educational people of Pennsylvania for aid in this, our hour of need.

Humanity forbids that our children be left to roam about the streets, subject to the contaminating influences of street associations. But the cause of the public schools of this city, in their utter destitution, needs no argument before the schoolmen of this State. We feel that we have only to state our need to secure the requisite aid.

We desire to open the schools at the usual time, and, to this end, we hope our friends will be prompt in giving us assurances of co-operation. A small sum gathered from the citizens of each of the twenty-two hundred school districts of the State will not be missed by them, and will be a blessing to us.

Johnstown has been a prosperous city in the past, and when she rises, as she surely will, from the ruin and desolation which enshroud her at present, her grateful people will not forget in their happier hours the friends whose generous and sympathetic hands were stretched out to them in the night of their sorrow and want.

H L COULTER, PRESIDENT.
D J JONES, SECRETARY.
JAMES J FRONHEISER.
GOTLIEB BANTLY.
J W HAMER.
HORACE R ROSE.
JOHN VON ALT.

Dr. E E Higbee, the State Superintendent of Public Institution, endorses this appeal as follows:

We fully endorse this touching appeal of the School Directors of Johnstown to the schoolmen of the State. No interest has suffered more from the disastrous flood than the schools. They need immediate help, and surely it will be given. Let every borough, city, and county superintendent take prompt measures to gather contributions, and forward the same at once to the School Board at Johnstown, that the schools may be opened and the children gathered into them.

Our people will not neglect such a challenge as this upon their generous sympathy. They will not see destitute parents, their property and their friends buried beneath the flood, suffering the additional misery of being deprived of all opportunity of schools for their children. They will respond to this appeal.

No superintendent, therefore, need hesitate a single moment to organize the work of soliciting contributions, by teachers and others, that sufficient funds may be secured to start the schools into operation. Then the busy hum of happy children at their studies may help to drive away the sad memory of the horrors through which the wrecked city has passed.

Very respectfully,
E E HIGBEE,
SUP'T OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

Grand Assembling of Veterans of the Late war at Sunbury, Oct. 9th.

A large number of the comrades of the G A R will attend the Grand Army Day re-union at Sunbury Wednesday next. About two hundred have expressed their intention to go, rain or shine. Peters Bros. Post will send a detachment; Grove Bros; Dr. Geo. L. Potter Post; Capt. Wm I Furst Post, they joining Gregg Post at Bellefonte, and, with the other G A R Posts in Penns Valley, they will all consolidate in one organization to go into the parade at Sunbury as the G A R Posts of Centre County.

The excursion will be by the regular train, leaving Bellefonte station at 6 a. m., Oct. 9th, arriving at Sunbury at 9.40 a. m. in time for the great parade at 11 o'clock a. m.

For the benefit of all those wishing to return the same night

will leave Sunbury station at 10 p. m., taking passengers back to the station they departed from.

Excursionists will remember that the excursion is to Sunbury and no where else. Your ticket will be good to return on next day.

Rates of fare: From Bellefonte $2.26; Lemont $1.99; Oak Hall, $1.94; Linden Hall, $1 88, Centre Hall, $1.72; Rising Spring $1.54; Coburn, $1.34:

The Railroad Company have made ample arrangements for this excursion and should have a liberal patronage from citizens of Bellefonte and vicinity, who desire to see a great day at Sunbury.

The Music Committee desire to say that the arrangements have been made and funds necessary contributed, and they will not ask members of G A R Posts outside of Bellefonte to contribute any additional money.

R C IRVIN,
Secretary Committee G. A. R.

Pleased With It.

Col. R. H. Thomas, editor of the Farmers Friend and Grange Advocate, says editorially of his recent visit to the Central Pennsylvania Grangers' picnic:

We had the pleasure of being present at the Centre County Picnic Exhibition last week and meeting many old, true and tried friends. The meeting was a grand success, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather in the beginning of the week. The attendance, while very large, was not near so great as it would have been had the week opened brighter. The line of exhibits showed a large increase over that of last year. General Manager Rhone and his able committee conducted the affair to the entire satisfaction of everyone. And the Centre County Picnic Exhibition has now become one of the fixed institutions of our organization in Central Pennsylvania. On another page will be found a full and interesting account of the meeting from our special correspondent.

Plenty of Peaches in Connecticut.

Connecticut's peach crop is large in quantity and excellent in quality. Curiously, not for 30 years, has it been possible to raise peaches in Connecticut, but this has all changed. Fifty years ago there was a like change. At that time there were good peach crops there, but they as suddenly ceased, and have returned again. The cause of these changes is not known. It appears to be beyond the scientists to discover.

—H. B., of Milesburgh, does not deny that he did get lost the other night while out walking with the prettiest girl in that borough; but he says that is not nearly so ridiculous as was the case of E. —The adjourned meeting of the Board of the Directors of the Y. M. C. A. will be held this evening at 8.30 o'clock and on Friday evening at 7.30 the annual meeting of the Association to elect officers will take place.

Our Story Teller.

A LETTER THAT CAME.

TRUE IT WAS RATHER SLOW ABOUT IT, THOUGH SURE.

Early one morning Master Edward Barton arose from his pillow in great haste, called himself a hard name, and, having made his t ilet, sat down to write a letter.

He had had a quarrel with his sweetheart—Miss Sallie Peyton and now he was anxious to become reconciled to her.

After covering several sheets of paper with words and sentences, merely to destroy them, he at last produced this effusion :

"My darling lump of sugar : Forgive your wicked Edward. It was all his own fault, and he repents in dust and ashes. Write to him to come to his own pet before he dies of sorrow. He can't live without you."

Having closed this missive in a neat envelope, Master Edward caught up his hat and rushed toward the village post-office, but had not made half the distance before he espied, trotting along the road with a small basket on his arm, a very small boy, no other, in fact than the brother of the damsel to whom the note was directed, and, uttered the exclamation :

'Hallo Phil !'

'Hallo yourself,' replied that worthy.

'Where are you going?' inquired the young man.

'Home,' said Phil. 'I've been to get coffee at the store.'

'Oh, coffee,' repeated the young man. 'You're a little fell w to send of errands, aren't you ?'

'No,' responded Phil. 'I is big.'

'Oh, so I perceive. I wonder now if you are big enough to carry a letter?'

'Of course,' said Phil.

'Then take this,' said the young man, handing him the missive he had composed, and give it to your sister as soon as you get home.'

'Why don't you take it yourself?' asked Phil.

'Oh your legs are younger than mine,' said the young man, seeking for an apt reply and finding none.

'Zey ain't,' said Phil, indignantly, 'my yegs is old.

Any imputation of youth was always resented with indignation by this five-year-older.

'Of course; where were my brains? I might have knows your legs were as old as you were,' said Edward, in a mollifying tone.

'Yes,' said Phil, 'of tourss. I've got new boots.'

He laboriously lifted first one chubby leg and then the other, to exhibit them the better.

'Regular seven-leaguers.' I declare,' said Master Edward. 'Now carry that letter safe to Miss Sallie, and I'll bring you some caramels when I come over.'

'All right. Good-bye,' said the young gentleman, in the more condescending tones. 'Tome soon,' and away he trotted, while Master Edward, while confident of his lady's mercy, now that he had humbled his pride and asked forgiveness, stalked along the road, which arose gradually from the flat farming land to the rocky hillside, and shortly reached an elevation which enabled him to see the chimneys of Pine farm, the abode of the Peytons.

A few steps more and the increased elevation permitted him to look upon the garden, and standing at the gate he saw a little blue figure that made his heart beat. It was Sallie's own.

At that distance he knew that even if she looked up she would not recognize him, so he stood still and gazed. He had not seen her for three good weeks, and even to look upon a fluttering figure in blue, that he knew to be no other, gave him joy.

She opened the gate and ran up the road a space, the ribbons at her waist floating out upon the breeze. She beckoned with her hand and went out of sight.

Shortly she returned, leading Phil by one hand and carrying the little basket in the other.

'She has got it,' said Edward.

He kissed his hand toward the chimneys reddened by the newly rising sun, and said to himself that she would surely write that very day.

His mother noticed that his appetite for breakfast was better that morning than it had been for some time past and laid the improvement to his morning walk.

Meanwhile Phil has been led into the kitchen.

'What on earth kept you so long?' asked his mother.

'I found persimmons,' said the child 'Bill shook 'em down and I picked 'em up.'

'I hope they were ripe,' said the mother.

'Yes. Sumpin' for Sallie in the basket,' said Phil, taking a hot biscuit from the pan and flying out into the garden.

'What is in the basket for me, ma,' asked Sallie.

'There's a dandelion in here,' replied Mrs. Peyton, handing the basket to Black Martha, the cook, after she had peeped into it and extracted the yellow flower.

The letter had managed to get itself under a loose splint, and was invisible in the shadow of the cover.

Sallie stuck the flower into her blue belt.

'Cuuning of Phil to bring it,' she said and the basket was hung upon a peg in the pantry, and poor Master Edward waited in vain for an answer.

Waited and waited, growing sad and sorry as time passed on, and Sallie waited also. She had believed that her lover would make overtures of reconcilliation, and she was ready to meet him half way. And two young hearts ached and were full of bitterness and believed that they must break, because of two inches of loose splint in a little old market basket:

Then Edward went away with an uncle who was captain of an ocean steamer, and Sallie, staying at home, refused the offers of hand, heart and fortune made her by various gallant Virginian youths, saw her younger sisters marry, and kept the secret of her heart from all.

'If he had but come,' she often said to herself.

'If she had but answered,' Edward said as often, having no doubt that she received his letter.

As for Phil, he went away to school, and afterward to a military academy, and grew tall and handsome, and came home for the holidays, and was the family joy and pride as heretofore.

And the splint basket hung upon the hook in the pantry with a persistency only possible to a Southern basket in a Southern kitchen.

It was old and shabby, and a sort of heirloom. A big new basket had been in constant use when Phil went on his errand, but this had been chosen for its small size and light weight.

Phil was just sixteen and home from school, and for the first time since he went away Edward had come home. He had prospered, but he had not married.

He had never forgiven Sallie for refusing to forgive him, and he believed he hated women for her sins. The truth was he still loved her.

After he had been home for a week and had been to call on all his old friends, and had found the Virginian village unchanged, even the old pump, that some one had begun to paint blue, stood half unfinished as it was when he went away, and old Uncle Blink, the gardener, had not had time to finish "Plantin' dem yar s'ringa," he walked one morning down into the village to the post-office.

The postmaster was still sorting the letters in the tea-caddy, as he had been when he last saw him, and his wife was reading the postal-cards and commenting on the news they conveyed.

There were letters and papers for him, and after he had got through with the requisite amount of gossip he turned his steps homeward and came full upon a tall youth who carried in his hand a shabby little old splint basket.

'Well,' cried this young fellow, in astonishment, 'is it you or somebody else?'

'I believe I am myself,' said Edward. 'But who—unless—why, it is Phil Peyton, grown like the vine in 'Jack and the Bean-stalk !'

'I do shove up,' said Phil. 'You look shorter, somehow. Well, how do you do? Somehow it seems as if all this happened before.'

'It did—eleven years ago,' said the older man. 'You carried the same old basket, and were going for coffee.'

'I've been for coffee now,' said Phil. 'Well, come and see us. Good-by; they are waiting for the coffee. Uncle Mo would have taken two hours to do the errand, so I offered to run over to the store. Good-by. Do come over and have a cigar and a chat.'

He hurried away. Edward went slowly up the hill. Had Sallie altered as much as Phil had? he asked himself.

Sallie was twenty-seven now; he was thirty-one. He heaved a sigh suitable for an eightieth birthday.

'Youth has flown' he thought and love with it.'

He looked over his shoulder at this moment. He had reached the point whence he could see the Peytons' garden.

Despite himself he turned and gazed. Phil had entered the gate. A little woman in blue stood there and took the basket from him.

'Sallie ! My God ! I am just as fond of her as ever !' sighed Edward. 'What an idiot I am !'

The tears arose to his eyes. He saw her take the basket from Phil and the two entered the house together.

'Who do you think I just met now, ma?' said Phil.

'Who was it? queried the mother.

'Sallie's old beau. Mr. Edward Barton,' said Phil. 'He didn't know me at first.

Sallie turned to look out of the window.

"Here is the coffee, Martha," said Mrs. Peyton, handing the basket to the cook.

"Dey is a letter in dis yar basket, misses," said Martha.

"Did you give me one to mail?" asked Phil. "I didn't see it."

"No, it's directed to Sallie," said Mrs. Peyton. "Why, how dirty it is?"

Sallie caught the letter. After one glance at the hand in which it was directed she disappeared from the room.

The next day Edward Barton received a letter. Within it was his own dear missive.

"DEAR MR. BARTON : To-day when Phil came in he brought this letter in a little old basket we have had in the house forever. It is dated eleven years ago. He remembers that you gave him one for me when he was a little boy. It must have caught in the splints and hidden itself all this time. I want you to know that I never read it before or surely I should have answered it. "Yours truly,

"SALLIE PEYTON."

Eleven years of sorrow! Eleven years of anger !

It was really one of Cupid's excellent tricks; but, after all, these two were yet young and they loved each other, and all is well that ends well. —Companion.

A Kiss Over the Telephone Wire.

Early one morning last week I chanced to be in the office of a wholesale merchant down town, at a time when the pretty little operator of the typewriter tumbled into a trap of her own making, says the Pittsburg Chronicle Telegram Gossip.

Such a pretty girl, with very blue eyes, bright brown hair, and an assortment of dimples, is this deft manipulation of the typewriter keys.

The telephone which hung on the wall just behind the girl, whose desk was close to her employer's in his private office, rang loudly as I took a seat. I seized the opportunity to congratulate the merchant on his choice of so fair a secretary.

'Yes,' said he in an undertone, 'she is pretty, and she is as well behaved and quick at her work as she is pretty. The only thing I can complain of in her conduct is the hold that telephone seems to have upon her. She is engaged, I believe, to a nice enough fellow, a clerk in a broker's office, but he will persist in calling her up on the telephone. He called her up so often on Monday last that I told her she must tell the young man to wait until after business hours. The blushed, and said she would tell him.

'Since then—that was three days ago—apparently he has not been near the telephone, but, strange to say, Mary's—that's the girl's name—sister has taken to holding long conversations with her at all hours of the day. The noise disturbs me, but I don't like to interfere with the girl's domestic affairs. Just listen to her now !'

We did listen, and we heard something like the following :

'Charlie didn't come to see me.'

An interval of silence.

'You know he called to see Kate.'

Interval.

'What's that ;' —— —— ——'Oh, nonsense ; of course I shall go with you. Will you call for me? What did you say? Oh, Bob's going, too.'

Interval.

'You can, if you like, but I just hate that girl, and if she's there I won't stay. Did you say 6 o'clock? Make it 6.30.

Interval.

'I wish I could; it seems an awful long time to wait. Oh, you mustn't talk like that. Isn't there any one there?'

Interval, during which the girl, with the receiver at her ear, laughs and blushes by turns, and finally says titteringly: 'Not one—I won't give you one, you bad boy.'

She hung up the receiver without another word, and sat down blushing furiously.

'How is your sister this morning?' said the merchant, with an accent on the 'sister.'

But Mary answered never a word.

He Misunderstood.

The young woman (on top platform of Eiffel tower)—"Doesn't it seem strange to you, Mr. Spoonamore, that so little oscillation is noticeable up here?"

The young man (eagerly)—"Not at all, Miss Ethel. I have no doubt there is a great deal of it indulged in up here, but it can't be seen from below. The elevation is too great. And now Miss Ethel, you will—I am sure—you will pardon—"

The young woman (arresting his forward movement by a freezing look)—"I said oscillation, Mr. Spoonamore—not osculation." (After a distressing silence)—"I think Mr. Spoonamore, it is time for us to descend."

A Foregone Conclusion.

Canvasser—I have here a work—

Master of the House—I can't read.

Canvasser—But your children—

Canvasser—Well, you want something to throw at the cat.

He took it.

MISS McCORMICK'S TROUSSEAU.

THE EXPENSIVE OUTFIT PREPARED FOR EMMONS BLAIN'S BRIDE-ELECT.

A special despatch from Augusta, Me., says: "An Augusta lady who has seen the wedding trousseau of Miss Anita McCormick, Emmons Blaine's fiancee, says it is one of the most elegant and expensive outfits ever owned by an American bride-elect. Lace is Miss McCormick's special luxury and upon it she has spent thousands of dollars, so that every piece is covered with cascades of most exquisite webs from all parts of Europe where lace is made. She has a fancy for white underclothes, too, and nearly every garment is of the the snowiest mull or silk, the only color being furnished by the narrow ribbons running through the laces, and in many instances the ribbons are white also. Her bridal garments are of white India silk, trimmed with the most beautiful Irish point, and this same point trims one of the few tinted sets in the trousseau—one of pale lemon colors, which also includes a silk petticoat and satin corset.

"The bridal stockings are of white silk, embroidered with silver threads, and there are other pairs of white stockings embroidered in gold and colors. This is a new fashion, introduced by Miss McCormick, who likes white stockings as well as white underclothes, and who mailed directions with her order to Paris that instead of sending stockings of color to match each costume, they should be white, embroidered with silk the shade of the dress.

"In conjunction with the liking for white, Miss McCormick has a fondness for the perfume of lilies, and special sachets for the perfuming of her garments have been sent from Holland, the only place where the perfumers have learned to impart the odor of the lily to sachat powder. The powder is enclosed in white satin bags edged with lace and embroidered with her monogram, and there are three dozen of them for her different trunks and boxes. Her opera cloak for this winter is a heavy white silk, embroidered with gold and lined from top to toe with the long silk hair of the Persian lamb."

The Jordan.

There is probably nothing more disappointing to the tourist in Palestine than the first sight of the Jordan. This most famous of earthly streams cannot be seen until you are upon its very banks. What a disenchantment it was to find ourselves looking into a stream scarcely wider than a creek, with muddy banks, and water as muddy as that profane river, the Missouri! It is no wonder that Naamanpreferred the limpid river of the north. Some of the party had brought formidable bottles with them, intending to fill them and take them back to America to serve in case of the baptism of infants yet unborn. But they were thrown away unused. We almost gave up the project of bathing, but we remembered that we had come 6,000 miles and would probably feel often inclined to say after our return home that we had bathed in the Jordan, even if we did not do so. So after luncheon we got ready, slid down the muddy bank and then—had the most refreshing bath of a lifetime.

If I had ever had rheumatism I might have felt like a former bather, who said he "imagined himself miraculously delivered of that lingering infirmity" by a bath in the Jordan.

The water was five feet deep and over. The bed of the river is covered with pebbles. The current is exceedingly swift, and we were obliged to use all our strength to keep on our feet in wading to the eastern bank and avoid being carried down stream. We could not swim across. The waters are cold and very sweet to the taste. The channel is about 110 feet wide at this point. As we stood on the soil of Moab we looked back and thought of the old hymns which use the river as an image of the line dividing the present from the future life :

"On Jordan's rugged banks I stand
And cast a wishful eye."

The Hudson, the Susquehanna, and many other streams are incomparably more useful, but no stream on earth can equal the Jordan in sacred associations. Only pity that the pure, clear water that we saw 115 miles to the north, gushing forth from the base of Mt. Hermon at Paneas, should at least have no better fate than to be lost in the Sea of Death.

This is Very Bad.

An old bachelor, who was quite a wit, lived alone in a very uncomfortable-looking place, and his apartments were always in great disorder. "Why don't you get married?" said a friend, one day. "Then you would have some one to fix up things here, and make it look homelike." "The fact is, I never thought of it," said he. "But it does look reasonable that a better half would make better quarters."

LET THE FLAG WAVE.

By all means let the stars and stripes wave from every school house in the city. Let the little toddler as he takes his a b c book and goes to the school room for the first time see that glorious banner fluttering above him. Let every year of his school life, every step upward and onward be associated with the flag. We cannot have too much sentiment in regard to the stars and stripes; we cannot hold the flag too dear.

TO IDENTIFY A DIAMOND.

A ready way of identifying a diamond is given by an expert : Prick a needle hole through a card, and look at it through the doubtful stone. If it is spurious, two holes will be seen distinctly on the card ; if it is a diamond only one hole will be visible, for there is no other stone at all resembling the diamond but that gives a double reflection. This property is also made use of for determining an uncertain stone. If the finger is placed behind it, and looked at through the stone with a magnifier, the grain of the skin will be plainly visible if the stone is not a diamond, but otherwise, it will not be distinguished at all. A diamond in a solid setting may be distinguished in the same way ; if genuine, the setting at the back cannot be distinguished, but if a false stone, either the foil or the setting may be plainly seen.

A Most Suggestive Event.

From the New York World.

The departure of Frederick Douglass, United States Minister to Hayti, for his post next Saturday on a Government man-of-war will strike the thoughtful man as a most suggestive event. Here is a man who was born a slave, whose masters were protected by law, a man who has been chased by bloodhounds and who was obliged to flee from the land of his birth, a man who at one time seemed to have no career save that of a fugitive or a sale able piece of flesh, who is honored to-day by the Government and is considered a fit person to represent the United States in a foreign land. The wildest flights of the most imaginative novelist never begot a more wonderful romance than the story of this man's life.

A Mutual Smile.

When the contribution-box was passed in a certain church on Sunday last, a young man passed in his mite, but did not discover until too late that he had given two ten cent pieces stuck together. Then he looked up and smiled, and the deacon smiled. They both know how it is. Beer is sometimes adhesive as well as conducive.

He Was Posted.

Old man (at the head of the stairs at 2.30 a m)—Susie, what time is it?

Old Man—Don't forget to start the clock again when you go to bed.

STORY OF A GOOD GIRL.

Clara—They tell me that after your quarrel with Charles he wanted to break the engagement—asked for his ring, and all that.

Louise—Not at all, my dear; I may be somewhat injured, but I'm still in the ring.

What she Didn't Break.

A crash is heard in the kitchen of a house on Galveston avenue. The head of the family calls out to the cook : "what have you broken now, you—black idiot?' Matilda stops singing a hymn to answer : 'Tain't de fo'f commandment, bress de Lord.'

Why he was like Flannel.

"Willie's like a piece of flannel," said Tommy, as he watched his small brother cuddled up in the bath tub."

"Why do you say that, Tommy?"

"Because he shrinks when he is washed."

I say, conductah, how comes it that we've reached ouah destination half a minute late?" "Front end of train's on time. Rear end's allus late."

A shoemaker hung out a sign, and then wondered what passers-by found so amusing. His sign ran as follows : "Don't go elsewhere to be cheated. Walk in here."

"There's another monopoly," growled an old bachelor as a pair of lovers passed him, both "talking sweet" at once. How's that?" "Well, if that isn't a consolidated gas company there never was one."

Jack Tar : 'We ain't so very far from land, Jim ! There's been a yacht along here lately.' Jim : 'How do you know?' Jack Tar : 'See all them champagne corks.'

First Stranger (in Boston) : 'Can you tell me how to reach Washington street?' Second Stranger : 'That's just where I want to go. Let's work together. You go south and I'll go north, and we'll report progress every time we meet.'

A young man who lives in Austin, and whose moustache is, like faith, "the evidence of things not seen," called on his prospective father-in-law, and gave notice that he intended marrying the old gentleman's daughter at an early date. "It had better take place on some Saturday, so that it will not interfere with school hours,' sarcastically remarked the old man.

Mr. Tompkins (to Manager Snapshow, who has just returned from Europe)—"Did you have a pleasant trip?"

Snapshow—"Oh, yes ; but I was very homesick until I reached Rome. I felt all right there."

Tompkins—"How was that?"

Snapshow—"Why, I spent two days in the catacombs, and the collection of dead-heads there made me feel as though I was at home."

Mrs. Brown—'Is this hotel on the European plan?'

Mr. Brown—(in preoccupied tones from behind his paper)—'Yes, my dear.'

Mrs. B.—I am not feeling hungry this morning. I think I'll merely take some coffee and rolls."

Mr. B.—(laying aside his paper)—"What were you asking me, my dear? On the European plan? No, it is not.

Mrs. B. (to waiter)—"You may bring me an omelette, some shad, mutton chops, with a bit of bacon, baked potatoes, rolls, and coffee, and afterward some griddle cakes and syrup.

A Berlin Judge the other day when addressing a blacksmith who appeared as witness spoke as follows : "I should have thought you would dissuade your workingmen from going to law with such a trifle." Witness—"That's what I did ! I said, 'Children,' said I, 'the clerk at the lawyers will take your coat, and the lawyer will strip off your shirt, and as for the Judge, why men, he'll skin you alive !' You see, I talked sensibly to the folks like that, but it was all of no use.

Action of Waters in general upon the Human System.

We are agents for Centre county, for the celebrated Bedford Springs mineral water. Many persons in this county are now using this great remedy and all speak in highest praise of its worth. We have given you in a previous article quite a history of this great remedy, and we propose now to speak of the action of water in general upon the human system, to be followed by articles more particularly of the action of mineral waters, and the celebrated Bedford water in particular, what this water cures, and in fact all the information that can be desired upon this important subject.

The analysis of the water recently made by Dr. Henry Leffman, Analytical Chemist and Expert, is full and complete, and shows that the medicinal agents contained therein remain about the same as when analyzed by Dr. Church, in 1825, so far as the quality and quantity of magnesia, soda, lime and iron are concerned. He, however, calls special attention to the high degree of organic purity of the Magnesia Spring. There is no evidence of nitrates or nitrites or any fixed organic matter. The water retains its qualities unchanged for a long period of time.

Next to sunlight and heat, water is the greatest life-giving force in all nature. Man has been known to exist for weeks and months without food, but could not survive long without water. The human body is made up of millions of cells and these cells must be filled by water in order to uphold the ecomony of the human system in an approximate normal condition. All the organs of the body are influenced, and their action is either increased or diminished, according to the amount of fluid in the cell tissues. The whole organism is at once affected by the quality and quantity of fluid imbibed.

Physiologists teach that 58.5 of the human body is composed of water, and that no assimilation can take place by the kidneys or lungs without the free use of this agent. Neither can the process of digestion nor the absorption of food take place without first being diluted by water. Physiologically and chemically considered, water is therefore one of the most vital and important elements which enters into the composition of the system. By the action of this fluid on the blood all the tissues are nourished and all the fluids are formed, and all the processes of life take place. It gives mobility and activity to the muscles and nerves, and prevents their friction and premature decay. It is through the action of water on the bowels, kidneys, skin and lungs that all the worn-out and poisonous matter is removed from the system. Water is more rapidly absorbed by the blood than any other substance which can be introduced into the body, and it therefore more readily modifies morbid conditions with which it comes in contact. The action of water on the system is either that of a sedative, a stimulant, a cathartic, a diaphoretic or diuretic, according to the quality and quantity taken in a given time.

In our next, we will tell you about the action of Mineral waters in general upon the human system. While we are ready to supply you with Mineral water, do not forget that we also keep everything in the grocery line. Call and see us, at Eureka Grocery store, next door to Post Office, Bellefonte, Pa.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism for 10 years standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all disease of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at W. C. Keplinger & Co's. Drugstore.

—In a most distressing accident at the Carnegie-Thompson steel works, at Braddock, on Thursday, several persons were frightfully and some fatally burned by the molten steel which flowed from one of the blast furnaces. Among those who were very badly burned is Captain W R Jones, the general manager. The rush of the liquid steel knocked Mr. Jones down into the pit. Fortunately, he fell between two trucks, or he would have been burned to death instantly. When removed from the pit his clothing was entirely burned from his body. It was Captain Jones who took three hundred men to Johnstown at his own expense a couple of days after the flood and remained there a couple of weeks directing the work of rescue. If we remember correctly Captain Jones has been mentioned as a suitable candidate for Governor of the State, but as soon as his name was mentioned, promptly wrote in reply that he had no desire to be a candidate and was in favor of Gen. Hastings for that position.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial: It may save you from consumption.

—Edward Hughes, who is one of the individuals mentioned in a decidedly unenviable light in connection with the domestic infelicity which is supposed to have led to the horrible tragedy in Philipsburg on Sunday, the 22d, writes to the Philipsburg Journal defending himself. He said he never knew the murdered woman, Mrs. Hopkins, to act otherwise then as a true lady would act, and the only way he can account for Hopkins' imputations in the letter is because he had frequently been compelled to refuse loans of money to Hopkins when the latter had asked for it.

HAPPY AND HUNGRY

For over five years I was a constant sufferer with that most terrible and annoying disease, dyspepsia. After paying out hundreds of dollars, the only medicine I found that would do me any good, was Sulphur Bitters. Six bottles cured me. Now I can eat well and am happy and hungry.—[EDITOR.

A Woman's Lively Crusade on Saloons.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Thomas Woods of Warsaw, Ind., has begun an active war against the saloons of that place. Some time ago she served notice upon the proprietors of several saloons forbidding them to sell liquor to her husband, who is an ex-county clerk and prominent in the business world. These notices were uniformly disregarded, and a few days ago she entered one of the drinking places and smashed a costly mirror. Tuesday she went into Roseau's saloon, threw a hammer through a large mirror and broke the front windows of the place. She was not arrested, and public sentiment is in her favor. She says she means to keep up her peculiar style of warfare till the sale of liquor to her husband is discontinued.

Payment of Mortgages.

On the 7th of May Governor Beaver approved an act of Assembly which will be found to be of interest and profit to many people. It reads as follows: 'That from and after the passage of this act it shall be the duty of the holder or holders of mortgages recorded in the proper office at least once every three years to cause to be entered on the margin of the record thereof all payments of either principal debt, or interest, or both, made by, or in behalf of mortgager, on being tendered or paid the legal fee for such entry or entries by the mortgager or any one interested in the property covered by the mortgage, either as owner or as a lien creditor. If the holder or holders of any such mortgage shall neglect or refuse, after written request and tender of the legal fee therefor, for a period of three months, to cause to be entered on the record of any such mortgage any and all such payments of principle or interest, or both; such holder shall be liable to pay to any party interested therein who shall have made such tender and request the sum of $100 for each failure to comply with the provisions of this act; said sum to be recovered by any court of record where a proper service may be had in action of debt.

An Important Law For Borrowers.

By the act of the legislature, approved June 1, 1889, it is declared that after the passage of said act it shall be unlawful for any persons, corporations, etc., in loaning money at interest, whether on bond and mortgage or otherwise, to require the person or persons borrowing the same to pay the tax imposed thereon by the first section of the act, and in all cases where such tax shall have been paid by the borrowers the same shall be considered usury and be subject to the laws governing the same. Section 1 imposes the tax of 3 mills on the dollar, as to which, it is stated, that a failure of assessors to assert the same shall not discharge the owner or holder from liability for payment. As the usual printed form of bonds and mortgager or obliger this act changes such printed forms and the system formerly pursued by real estate lawyers and conveyancers, and should be noted by the public.

SPECIAL KNIGHT TEMPLAR TRAIN TO WASHINGTON VIA PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

For the benefit of Knights Templar and the public who desire to visit Washington on the occasion of the conclave, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged to run a special train from Erie to Washington. The train will be equipped with parlor cars and day-coaches, It will leave Erie Monday, October 7th, at 7.45 A. M., and make the following stops: Corry 9.00 A. M., Warren 9.50, Kane 10·45, Ridgeway 11.35, Renovo 2.05 P. M. (dinner), Harrisburg 6,45 (supper), and arrive at Washington 11.10 P. M.

Excursion tickets valid for return October 31st will be sold at a single fare for the round trip.

This is an excellent opportunity to visit the National Capital, and no one should lose sight of it.

THE CENTURY has in preparation a series of papers on topics relating to the Gold Hunters of California. The articles will be prepared for the most part, as were the War Papers, by prominent participants in the events which they describe; and they will include accounts of Early Explorations, Life in California before the Gold Discovery, the finding of Gold in 1848 at Sutter's Fort, the Journey to California by Different Routes (around the Horn, across the plains, by Nicaragua, and by Panama), Life in the Mining Camps and in San Francisco, and other important aspects of Calfornia life at the time. It is believed that these papers will be in the nature of a revelation to the reading public of the present day as to many interesting aspects of the pioneer period, its its romance and adventure, its tragedy and pathos, and its poetry and humor. A careful search in California and elsewhere has already brought to light many interesting pictures never yet engraved. The publication of the papers will not be begun until the series is further advanced.

A GOOD MAGAZINE.

The modern magazine may be taken as embodying the best literature of the world, as the magazine editor pays the highest price to novelists, scientists, statesman, soldiers, and even kings and princes, for the best they can furnish in the literary line. The well-edited magazine becomes an educating influence in the family circle, whose importance cannot be over-estimated. The children, as they grow up, are attracted by its illustrations, and so come in time to have a taste for reading. There is always something that is new, something that is strange, something that is interesting; and we consider that we are doing our readers a positive benefit if we are instrumental in placing such a publication within their reach. The special arrangement which we have made with the COSMOPOLITAN presents very unusual inducements. That magazine, although only in the tenth month under its new management, is already recognized as one of the most interesting publications of the day. It is seeking subscribers everywhere and obtaining them. The proprietors believe that the COSMOPOLITAN has only to be examined to secure a permanent subscriber. That is why we are enabled to make, if the offer is accepted before January next, such a very low rate, by which our readers can obtain the COSMOPOLITAN for little more than the cost of this journal alone. Just think of what the combination means! You obtain your own home journal at about the regular price, and have thrown in a magazine which gives you in a year, nearly fourteen pages of reading matter by the ablest writers of the world, including six hundred pages of illustrations that are unsurpassed in point of interest and execution. Will it not pay you to send a subscription to this office for the REPUBLICAN and the COSMOPOLITAN, immediately? Remember, only $2.45 for the two.

THE NATIONAL MAGAZINE is the name of a new literary venture of Chicago, which begins with the October number. It is published under the auspices of the new "National University," which opens October 1st, of which it is an organ The first number will contain articles on literary, educational and scientific subjects, and a prospectus of the University, which is said to be modelled after the London University and has extensive non-resident courses, teaching many subjects by mail. Published at 182 Clark Street.

The Action of Mineral Waters in General.

In our article of yesterday we told you about the action of water in general upon the human system we now propose to have a word to say about the action of Mineral waters in general upon the human system. Mineral water, in the true acceptation of the term, is one which by virtue of the ingredients contained therein acts upon the human system as a medicine. The true origin of mineral springs is still a mystery to philosophers. Most writers, however, hold to the opinion that mineral springs derive their flow from the fall of rain, or are the result of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. The solvent power of water is unequalled by any other fluid, and no rocks, however compact, can resist its action; it will penetrate every crevice and fissure of the earth. Water falling from the clouds and passing deep down into the earth filled with mineral rocks and beds, its solvent power absorbs and and takes up the various salts in all their freshness and chemical purity, and it again bursts forth from Nature's labratory to restore failing health and wasted energy, and when thus loaded with mineral agents it stimulates the arterial and venous currents, opens the pores of the skin, increases the flow of urine, washes out the alimentary canal, and gives tone, mobility and energy to the whole body, and is highly essential in the process of digestion, of absorption and secretion.

In our next article we will speak of the action of the celebrated Magnesia water from the Magnesia Spring of Bedford upon the human system, this is the water that we keep for sale at the Eureka Grocery store, High St., Bellefonte, next door to post office.

Fresh groceries always on hand. Call and see us.

The Art of Prosperity.

The Eureka man has been doing for some time past considerable advertising, and as I do not want to get all the good there is in this world, let my brother merchants take a word of advice from me. Some have said to me, "Well, you can afford it, it don't cost you anything." But listen. I do not get it for nothing. The Eureka Grocery store pays for every line of advertising it does, and I have not put a single column into the papers that has not paid two dollars for every one spent by myself or that would have to be spent by any other store in town that would attempt the same thing. And we are now just beginning to reap the full benefit of this labor.

Ask anyone at all acquainted with our business and they will tell you that it is constantly increasing; that it has constantly increased ever since we began, and that our success is due to newspaper advertising. I do not want to be the only merchant in town that can truthfully say that while all around us works are stopping, men rae complaining that work is dull, that the Eureka is the only store whose business is not feeling the depression.

I am conducting three newspapers in this town and I can now speak from experience when I say to you that it will pay you to advertise in these papers; that it will help you much more than your wildest fancy dreams. I will set the Eureka advertisements into the remotest corner to give you the best place, or just the place you want.

People will read the Eureka articles any how, no matter where I place them. Now, believe me, "it is straight," I know it will do you good, and in the light of my own experience I advise you to try it, and if any of your customers want anything you have not got send them to the Eureka Grocery store, next door to Post Office, Bellefonte, Pa., and we will supply them, and then look out. You may never get them back again, but if you don't we will blame that on Smith, that is if you are in the grocery trade.

Tell me not that advertising
Is at best an empty dream,
For its charms are more surprising
(and the Eureka man, who has tried it tells you plainly that its effects are far more astonishing.)
Than its dull old-fashioned practitioners could ever deem.

And which ever way thou turnest
Thou will find upon the whole,
Those who advertise in earnest
(Yes, we have only to glance at the most successful firms all over the country to see that those who do the thing properly)
Soonest reach the wished-for goal.

Would'st thou then a lesson borrow?
Would'st thou know the royal way?
Advertise then so to-morrow
(Don't let a little expense deter you; you are merely casting your bread upon the waters, and you will soon have the satisfaction of knowing that each to-morrow)
Finds thee richer than to-day.

Advertise then! No retreating!
Let the senseless crockers rave:
While your heart with hope is beating
(You will always find a lot of people in Bellefonte as everywhere else who are blind to their interests; but while you are making fame and fortune)
They will find oblivion's grave.

Printer's ink will lead the battle—
Printer's ink, the balm of life;
Printer's ink—no din, no rattle—
(No, it does it's work on the quiet; and in the great war of competition which is now going on in this town, when judiciously and thickly laid on, it always)
Leads the van against the strife.

Advertisers oft remind us
We can make success sublime,
Make our pile and leave behind us
(Exactly, that's just where it comes in. We not only expect to feather our own nest, but we at the Eureka hope to provide for the prosperity and well-being of generations yet unborn, and so leave behind us)
What defies the touch of time.

Seeing which, perchance another
Struggling man with weary brain,
Some non-advertising brother,
(A good example is always to be commended, especially in the matter of advertising; and many a struggling business man seeing the secret of our success)
May with wisdom try again.

Advertise then! Up and doing!
So advert a meaner fate,
And, the wiser course pursuing,
(You will find that you will soon be in a position to look the world in the face, if you will only)
Learn to advertise and wait!

Of course, there are many ways of advertising, but we are of the opinion that there is no form or method so effective as newspaper advertising. It goes right into the home, and it goes to stay. I do not suppose that an "add" of "New Spring Goods," put in the paper and never changed the year through would do the work it should. I never tried that method. Such an "add" would have to do its most effective work, at least I should think, in the first three months.

Personally, we have always looked upon such work as a public notice that here is a careless merchant. But if you will take hold of this matter, and give it the same attention that you would or should give any other important matter, it can not do otherwise than pay. I speak to you in the light of a year's experience and "I am giving it to you straight."

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE U. P. L. OF PENNSYLVANIA.

You need no Committee to tell you, but only one voice to proclaim, what you already know. The organized liquor power of the country is the most formidable and dangerous foe we have to face.

It is an enemy of the Home, the State, the Church, the School; the destroyer of domestic peace and of public order, and of the bodies and the souls of men. It breeds poverty and crime and every noxious thing which civilized society abhors, and desecrates everything which a Christian people holds sacred. It seizes the sources of political power and the channels of public information, and by bribery and boycott buys or couples compliance with its insatiable demands. It obstructs wholesome legislation, perverts justice, paralyzes executive power and defeats the ends of good government. It robs labor of its rewards, and for the bread it earns gives a stone, and for a fish that which "biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." It poisons the channels of commerce and sends death to the ends of the earth. It is now rapidly consolidating its great power in gigantic trusts controlled by foreign capital manifestly confident that it can buy and browbeat its way in the future as in the past. Nothing less than universal and absolute dominion will satisfy its "vaulting ambition."

The hope we indulged that the people would arrest its progress by Constitutional barriers has proven delusive. We did not anticipate that the great power of the press and of organized political machinery would be enlisted in the service of this giant wrong for the crucial conflict of June 18th; nor could we foresee that the partial prohibition of the Brooks' law would prove such an effective weapon against the total prohibition proposed for the Constitution; or that this partial measure, when so used, would be shattered and thrown aside as worse than useless by the subsequent decision of the Supreme Court. If the good people of Pennsylvania had foreseen all this, or if Constitutional Prohibition were now available, the State would not long lie helpless at the feet of this monster. To-day the liquor power sits enthroned; but in the name of the great God and of the good people of this great Commonwealth, we arraign him as king of the criminals at the bar of the public judgment, revive all former indictments against him and charge that by added crimes he has usurped his present throne of power.

To his taunting question, which one less steeped in crime has made familiar, "What are you going to do about it?" we propose that the people make answer no less effective. Let others propose his coronation if they will: we will not have this power to reign over us. "When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him." To this standard with calm confidence of the final victory we rally. If we cannot shake this tyranny we are slaves; if we can and do not we are craven cowards.

We cordially invite our fellow citizens of all parties and creeds to unite with us in the Union Prohibitory League of Pennsylvania. Our object as declared in the Constitution, Art. II, is: "The suppression of the saloon. In order to do this we unite to secure;

"1. The strict enforcement of the prohibitory measures of existing laws relating to the liquor traffic.

"2. The early enactment of more stringent and prohibitory statutes with adequate penalties.

"3. The final adoption of Constitutional Prohibition for the State and the Nation.

"4. No step backward! We will persevere in this effort until from Pennsylvania and from the Nation, as from Maine, Kansas and Iowa, the saloon shall disappear."

And with this in view, we declare in Article III:

"1. That we owe PRIMARY ALLEGIANCE to God and humanity, to our country and commonwealth, and will hold all party affiliations subordinate to these higher claims.

"2. That, retaining our personal liberty to choose our political associations as to us shall seem best, we proclaim that we are, and will forever be, free from the dominion of the liquor power, and demand that all political connection between the saloon and the State, through whatever political party, shall be forever totally dissolved."

We propose to take measures for influencing political action in behalf of the objects of the League.

It is not proposed to nominate candidates for office. With three political parties in the field to name candidates for the public service, and the way always open for independent candidates; and with facilities for getting and giving information, there will be no difficulty in selecting candidates for our suffrages who shall be in harmony with the purposes of the League.

SERVICE PENSIONS.

An Exhaustive Article on the Subject—Reasons Why the Government Should Take Prompt Action in the Matter.

THE TAX ARGUMENT ONLY A FALSE ALARM.

$8.00 PER MONTH AS A MINIMUM BASIS—IT NEED ADD NOTHING TO TAXATION.

HOW TO USE THE SURPLUS.

(RESOLVED.—That the Centre County Service Pension Association hereby publish the following address on the subject of Service Pensions, believing that it contains a clear presentation of the proper ideas on the subject, and urge the G. A. R. and all other soldiers to secure for it the utmost circulation among the veterans of the late war, and among all citizens.)

TO THE SOLDIERS OF THE UNITED STATES:—

Comrades—In discussing the service pension subject we ought to take into account every element of past patriotism and present and future policy. The chief charges against service pensions are by writers who personally knew nothing of army service, or the patriotism that risked family and life that liberty might live, and are that "it would largely benefit some who are not in actual need and the 'skulkers' and 'hospital bummers.'"

To the first charge the sufficient reply is that the men whose abilities like Generals Spinola and Alger, and Senator Manderson, have made them rich, were young and poor when they volunteered their services when they were needed and rendered them; and only a demagogue of the deepest dye would endeavor to refuse justice to ninety-nine poor men because one rich man would be benefited thereby. The pittance the rich would get would be of little account to them, while the refusal of this act will practically pauperize a great number of needy and deserving men.

As to the "skulkers," they were scarce; their existence is a fancy of the men who were not there. As to the "hospital bummers," if such there were, it is well known that all who have a hospital record can and generally have received pensions.

WHO WOULD BE BENEFITED.

Much the largest number of men, nay, almost the whole number who will be benefited by a service pension law, are those who by reason of good luck escaped the death-missiles of the enemy and who, by reason of great personal health and strength, escaped the diseases incident to a soldier's exposures.

The soldiers who did the Government most service and cost it least were those who escaped wounds and disease and fought clear through. They were the most effective of the soldiers who saved the Republic from dismemberment, and hence in their old age they need and deserve this recognition.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

Recent investigations into the diseases and the cause of death of the old soldiers who have died and are dying, show that so large a proportion of them as to make it almost a universal rule are suffering from nervous prostration and die from heart failure. This result is undoubtedly due to the intense strain on the nervous systems of the men who lived and marched and shot and slept with the danger of instant death always hanging over them.

The average age of the living soldier is fifty-one years. At this age those who came through safe are breaking down in such numbers as to show that some universal cause underlies it, and that their army service has broken them down nineteen years sooner than they would have failed in the ordinary course of nature.

Ex-Pension Commissioner Black says the average death-age of the soldier is 56. If this is true the next five years will see an army of half a million soldiers answer the roll-call of death.

THE GOVERNMENT'S PROMISE.

It was not the promise or the intention of the Government that any of the men who took the oath, wore the uniform or carried the arms of the Republic should ever die in the poor house or in want. A service pension has been granted to the soldiers of all our other wars, and the soldiers of the war of the rebellion now demand one, and they want it now, when they and their wives and children may be benefited by it, and patriotism and faith in the Republic be strengthened by it.

In this article I shall not dwell at length on any of the results gained for the country and humanity. The soldiers gave to the country what was asked of them; and as a result they who came through safely are now rendered incapable of manual labor by reason of the diseases brought on by their services. They now ask that the Government's promise be fulfilled.

THE DEMAND.

Here, then, is the demand of those who advocate a liberal service pension law, viz: "That no soldier of the Republic shall be forced to accept private or public charity for the means of life."

It is a well known fact that from ten to thirty thousand soldiers of the Republic are in the poor houses of the different States, and that a much larger number are only kept out by the private charity of their relatives or of the Grand Army of the Republic; and it is further known that the limit of ability of the relatives and Grand Army of the Republic is nearly reached.

THE PROPOSED MEASURE.

To carry out the above demand we propose the following measure, viz:

That $8 per month be the basis (or minimum) of pensions for all soldiers, ($8 being the lowest food and clothing rate attained;) that those who served the longest may receive the due reward of their (from their trained skill) longer and more valuable service to the Government we adopt the per diem principle in addition to the $8 minimum. This means that one cent per month for each day served in the army shall be added to the minimum of $8 per month. Thus a soldier who served one month would get a pension of $8.30 per month; one year would get $11.65; two years would get $15.30; three years would get $18.95, and four years would get $22.60 per month.

This will in no way interfere with any pensions now being received, nor with any rights to increase or re-rating under the present pension laws, but will be in addition thereto.

This act would do away with more than half of the present cumbersome and inequitable system of the Pension Department, with its hosts of local boards, special examiners, etc., and the money would go direct to those entitled to receive it.

THE COST.

The cost of this act of justice would not be one-half, if even one-fourth, of what its opponents charge. But if it were as great or twice as great it is a duty, and the Government is able to and should do it. The wildest charge of its opponents is that a half-million people would get a pension under it, and that the average would be about half way between the minimum $8.30 and the maximum $22.60—$185.40 per year, say $200, this would give the first cost at $100,000,000—which would constantly diminish. All agree that there is now $100,000,000 annual surplus revenue, and where could it be placed with so much of benefit and justice as among those who made any surplus revenue possible?

THE TAXPAYER'S SIDE.

But here is the farmers' and house owners' side of the question, and it is to this particular view of the case that I wish to invite the attention of the public.

HOW SHALL THE OLD SOLDIERS BE KEPT?

The old soldiers who cannot work longer must be kept. They cannot go naked or starve. Leaving out of account all sentiments of patriotism, the broad fact remains that they are failing in such numbers and so fast in the ability to earn a living by labor, that they must be kept by a service pension or they must be kept by local taxation.

THREE WAYS OF PAYMENT.

There is no escape from the dilemma, and the only horns from which to choose are whether the whole wealth of the whole country shall keep them by a service pension law through our present revenue system, or whether the North and West shall keep them by local taxation; or whether another system can be found which will do the work and avoid all taxation, and be also a measure of great and permanent public benefit.

POINTS OF VIEW.

Looking at the subject from an equitable standpoint, it is unquestionably better that the whole increased wealth of the whole country should share in the cost of this unavoidable necessity.

Looking at it from a business standpoint, it is an admitted fact that the pension money now paid out, and which more than any reaches clear back to the hills and vales of the country, does more than any other to steady business and effect cash settlements in the country districts.

Looking at it from the moral point of view, it is a statistical fact that but few men ever recover their manhood who are driven to the necessity of receiving public charity, and the families of those who do receive it usually swell in increasing ratio the tide of panperism and crime.

If by reason of a service-pension the old soldiers who now labor in physical and mental misery to keep the gaunt spectres of nakedness and starvation, or the not less repulsive form of public charity from their households, could be allowed to lay down their laboring arms, the act would quicken every branch of business by the action of putting more money in circulation among the people, and by making room for the employment of more of the young and strong laborers of the country.

Every farmer, manufacturer and merchant would find his business increased and made steady by the change; and in this act the Republic would rise to a height of justice and glory wholly unparalleled in the history of the world except by the patriotism of the soldiers who maintained for us the only Government in which such an act is possible.

THE FINAL DEBT.

This pension-debt is the final war debt of the Republic. Of its more than six thousand millions of cost all has been paid but about eight hundred millions of bonds, and the money lying idle in the Treasury with the accruing surplus for the next three years is ample to pay all these, and the temper of the dominant west is to have them paid. This final debt should be provided for at the incoming session of Congress, and fortunately there is a means of doing it, and avoiding either local or general taxation, and of being as great a boon to the business of the country as the pensions would be to the old soldiers who would receive them.

SOME POLITICAL VIEWS.

If the Democratic view that all tariff income is an addition to the price paid by the consumer, then the burden of this pension debt should fall on all portions of this country alike. The South is the greater material gainer by the results of the war, and its added wealth should help pay this bill.

If the Republican view that all tariff revenue is paid by foreigners who desire to trade with us, and that the internal revenue is a voluntary contribution from those who desire to indulge in the luxuries of liquor and tobacco is the correct one, then it is unquestionably better that this pension debt be paid by the voluntary contributions of foreign tariff and domestic internal revenue payers, than to have it levied as local taxation on the farms and homes of the North and West.

In his Fourth of July speech at Woodstock, Thos. B. Reed, of Maine, touched this question lightly but practically, admitted it must be met, and said it must be done with justice to the taxpayers as well as to the pensioners. The only objection worth a moment's thought has been the cost. Following are the ways and reasons why this beneficent action can be put in force without cost, and fill the full measure of a great public need, and remove for a number of years from the arena of political contention one of the subjects of the most angry disputes.

THE REASONS AND THE MEASURE.

By the payment of the National bonds the notes of the National banking system are being rapidly reduced and will soon be extinguished. We must have an ample volume of paper money, and the dominant power of the Pacific coast and the west have decreed the payment of the bonds and rejected every effort to make a new basis for the National bank currency. The people will have no other paper money except United States legal tender paper money, and here is the opportunity to issue it for value received and the means to distribute it at once among the people, by providing for the payment of the service-pensions in new additions to our paper money. This would avoid any kind of taxation, and would in addition to our silver coinage keep the increase of currency somewhere near the needs of increasing population and business. The business of the country needs this stimulus now, and if an ample volume of currency could thus be applied to our business the cry for a reduction of the tariff would not be heard. With the payment of the National bonded debt forty millions per year of annual interest tax would be lifted from the shoulders of production, and the trouble of surplus revenues could be met by judicious additions to the free list and by cutting it down by raising the tariff on things we can produce and thus securing more work at home, and the lower prices which have always resulted from home competition and the saving of freights, as in iron, steel, silks, pottery, etc., and in fact on every article on which this policy has been tried.

Here, then, is the way to do justice to the soldiers without additional taxation: to provide the country with an ample volume of paper money, and to distribute it; and to set and keep going the wheels of industry.

THE LAW IN THE CASE.

The Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Greenman vs. Juillard, March 4, 1884, covered the whole legal ground on this subject. It affirmed the right of Congress to issue as much of any kind of money as it saw proper and to provide such means as it saw proper to put it in circulation. Hence this great measure of "justice to our soldiers," business beneficence and currency settlement has no legal obstruction and no plea of increased taxation to interfere with its adoption.

TO MY SOLDIER COMRADES.

In the days of our youth and strength we heard the bugle call of patriotism as it rang up the valleys to the corn fields, the sugar camps and the lumber jobs; as it drowned the noisy clangor of the factory and forge and sought us even in the depths of the mines. It found us with springing steps and stout hearts, and we answered again and again to the call for "three hundred thousand more," until, 'midst the hissing of the minnie, the hurtling of shot and shell, when the heavens were obscured and dying screams and prayers of men unheard in the smoke and roar of artillery, we drank the death-draught that "liberty and union" might live and bless the world forever. We are old, broken and dying now, but we can by our votes at this fall's election ask and compel our congressmen to do us justice. We drank the wine of death, disease and wounds on the battlefield—let us from the same canteen drink the wine of justice at the ballot box. THEODORE P. RYNDER,

Dr. Gale on Diseases of the Kidneys

Dr Gale observes in his treatise on disease that the great use of wine in France is supposed to have abated the prevalence of the gravel.

In some parts of this country where Speer's Port Grape Wine is principally used, not only the gout, but the gravel is scarcely known. Dr. La Pota relates as an extraordinary instance of the effects of Speer's Port Wine on gout the cure of Dr. Daveran, who was attacked with it at the age of twenty five, and had it severely till he was upwards of fifty, with chalk stones in the joints of his hands and feet, but for four years preceding the time when his case had been given to Dr. La Pota to lay before the public had by advice used Speer's Port Grape Wine, and had no return of the gout afterwards.—London Post.

The concert to be given under the auspices of the ladies of the Presbyterian church will be on Friday evening of next week, the 11th inst. Prof. Bane, of Boston, the celebrated guitar soloist, will be one of the attractions from a distance to take part in it. Admission only 25 cents.

We have received the October number of THE NATIONAL MAGAZINE, an educational and literary magazine devoted to correspondence teaching University Extension, and the organ of the new National University of Chicago. This first number contains articles entitled "Correspondence Teaching; Its Advantages," by Rev. J. G. Quinn, A. M., Ph. D.; "Hints on Collecting and Preserving Specimens of Natural History," by Prof. G. H. French, A. M.; "Lectures on English Literature," "The Reading Circle," and the Announcement of the University, giving a list of thirty-five non-resident professors representing, among others, such institutions as the University of Virginia, Tulane, Boston, Madison and Lehigh Universities, who agree to teach pupils at home by correspondence and grant them the usual degrees on examination. The idea seems a good one for persons who cannot attend other colleges, and is well developed. The usual miscellany, "Literary Notes," "University Extension," &c., follow. Subscription price, $1.00 per year. Published by the National University, 147 Throop St., Chicago, Ill.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE for October contains an exciting exploration article, in which Joseph Thomson describes his remarkable and famous journey through equatorial Africa, a very practical paper on the best way to improve the common roads of the United States, an able paper by "Ik Marvel," the fourth of "Reveries of a Bachelor," one of the most attractive electric articles, showing modern applications of electricity to war, on land and sea, the end of Stevenson's great romance, "The Master of Ballantrae," an unconventional travel article on Iceland, the second instalment of Harold Frederic's romance of Colonial New York with other interesting fiction and poems. Most of these articles are richly illustrated.

"How I Crossed Masai-land," by Joseph Thomson, tells in fresh and concise form the story of the author's wonderful journey in 1883, from the African coast to Lake Victoria Nyanza, over a route never before trodden by a white man. Gordon, when Governor-General of the Soudan, had pointed out that through Masai-lay the route of the future for permanent communication between the equatorial province—now famous as Emin's province—and the coast. The British Government interfered with his project to open up this route, but the Royal Geographical Society sent Mr. Thomson to make the journey. The Masai, who hold this country, were reputed to be the boldest and most unscrupulous savages in Africa, and Stanley had said that the only way to cross Masai-land was "with a thousand rifles." Yet Mr. Thomson successfully made the trip with one hundred and forty men, and did not lose one of them by violence. His record of this perilous journey is a modest, clear, and rapid narrative, filled with the spirit of adventure. The illustrations, from the author's original negatives give an adequate idea of the strange people and country.

Emin Bey's province (to which this route leads, and to which Stanley has just made a terrible journey) is fully described in the November number by Col. H. G. Prout, an American, who once led Gordon as Governor of the province, and was his trusted friend. Emin was then attached to Col. Prout's staff.

The funeral procession which followed the body of Miss Laura Eckley to the grave on Monday was the longest we seen for a long time. There must have been fifty or sixty private conveyances in line. The funeral services were impressive and solemn, and were conducted by Rev. W A Houck.

It is said that both butter and eggs are scarce and the price, which was not low at any time during the summer, is still soaring upward.

This paper has received from Capt. Austin Curtin, of Huntingdon, a long and well prepared account to the unveiling of the monument of the memory of Gen. Reno. As many of our readers are interested in this we will publish as much as we can of it soon.

We dont know just how many young men are interested in the preparation of the gymnasium which it has been proposed to conduct in connection with the Y. M. C. A. All who are interested in it, however, are informed that on Monday evening a plan was submitted to the Board of Directors. The building thus outlined, which was much the cheaper in construction of two plans proposed, will cost at least $500. The plan was not adopted for the reason that the meeting was not by any means a full one. The Board adjourned until Wednesday evening at 8.30, when it is likely a plan will be decided upon. If in the meantime, about one hundred young men notify G Wash Rees that they will join the Athletic Club this action may expedite the movements of the Board.

A Prohibition club was organized at the office of H H Harshberger, Esq., in this place, on Monday night, at which the attendance was very good. Prof. D M Lieb was chosen President, Samuel Schaffer and Jared Harper vice presidents, A J Cook treasurer and E T Burnside secretary. Many gentlemen signed the roll of membership.

If the Philadelphia Press does not increase its circulation and influence it will not be because it is not well advertised. During three days of last week copies of the paper were circulated freely through the town, and on Sunday and Monday two gentlemen representing it were here. On Monday they added many names to the list of subscribers, departing on Monday evening. The paper is the foremost Republican journal in Pennsylvania and equal to the best in the United States. It gives all the news. The person who subscribes for it will certainly receive in return many fold the small outlay of money which the subscription involves.

—The outlook for the extension of the Tyrone & Clearfield railroad from Curwensville to Mahaffey is assuming such shape as to warrant us in saying that railroad connection between the two places will soon be made. A number of the prominent men of Curwensville, Clearfield and this place are urging the matter of extending the road believing that it will be to the best interests of the people of this section. Hon. E. A. Bigler and Wm. H. Dill, of Clearfield, George W. Hoover, of this place, and A. E. Patton, of Curwensville, visited John B. Green, Third Vice President of the Pennsylvania railroad, on Wednesday of last week, and presented the matter of such extension as a matter of vital benefit to the Company and to the people of the surrounding community.—Philipsburg Journal.

—The ladies of the A. M. E. church are preparing a very attractive entertainment for their friends next Thursday evening. They have secured the room just west of the Watchman office, opposite the Bush House, where they will hold a festival, including chicken and waffles, jug breaking, etc. Ice cream and cake will be served. It will commence at 5 o'clock and continue during the evening. The white friends of this congregation are urged to patronize this festival.

—Mr. H. B., a Milesburg gallant, went walking with his lady love the other evening. He remained away a long time—so long, in fact, that two of his gentlemen friends were deeply concerned for his welfare. Lantern in hand the two gentlemen went in search of the couple and at length after a long search found them. When H. B. and his friend again take their walk abroad they should not remain away so long.

—There was a time when we attributed to the art of dancing the merit of aiding to make the dancer graceful. But our belief in this was much shocked when we noticed a dancing master who was about as awkward as anyone possibly could be. Hence the logical conclusion is inevitable either that dancing does not tend to grace or the dancing master in question was naturally the personification of awkwardness—so much so, in fact, that even when improved his pose and pedestrianism were not as graceful as those of other people.

A Houservillian who Grinds out Rhyme.

HOUSERVILLE, Sept. 28, 1889.

You may talk of beauty—
Of flowers and stars—
Of sunshine and moonlight,
Of flutes and guitars;
Of men made of nerve and plenty of grit,
But show me the man that hit John Dale with a brick.

John and his sons to the cider press went
And not wishing any idle time spent
Hitched up their five horses without more ado
And drove till the juice by the gallon flew.

Faster and faster around they did go
Till the boss of the cider press hollered 'whoa'!
For the press had bursted—blown up, as it were,
And then Cronemiller began to swear.

While Sammy, the speaker, in sore distress
Stood up on the power and made a speech;
And Coble, the brave, called out from the press
"Hit him with an apple that is in reach,"
While Johnny, the younger, not wishing to die
Stood up in the corner and began to cry;
But the old gents were angry, for the belt had broke
And Cronemiller wanted to get Dale by the throat.

But Johnny, his nibs, had been there before,
So he took a sneak through the cider press door
But there was no more cider made there that day
So they hauled the little apples away.

Our old friend Snyder—
He went to Ohier
To buy himself a farm.
But he came home disgusted
And very near bursted,
But didn't make any alarm.

For when it comes to natural gas
Says Snyder, I'll pass,
For it might do me some harm
Although I am brave,
I'll fight like a knave
Before I'll buy natural gas farm.

And Ohio I swear
I'll never go there,
For fence laws and natural gas I hate.
So I'll take my wife Barber
And go West farther
Or remain in the old Keystone State.

We are sorry to note that Mr. Harvey Hoy, one of Houserville's estimable young men, has been suddenly called away from our midst. He had been in apparently good health until Wednesday of last week, when he suddenly took his departure, and now he has "gone, gone,"—to Michigan to live with his brother Bob.

Don't forget that Chas. Everett, the post master at Lemont, also keeps a first class drug store, hardware, confectionery, etc

Lester Markle's Neck Broken.

From the Lock Haven Express we obtain the following particulars of the death of Lester Markle of Hublersburg:

Lester Markle, a young Nittany Valley farmer who lived near Hublersburg, Centre county, was thrown from a buggy Sunday and instantly killed, his neck having been broken by the fall. Young Markle was 26 years of age and resided on the farm with his parents. He was returning from the village of Hublersburg with another young man named Fisher. The horse was going at a fearful rate of speed and as the turn was made to drive from the public road to Markle's home the buggy was upset and the two men were thrown out. Fisher escaped without injury, but Markle was killed. Examination by physicians showed that his neck was broken. The unfortunate accident cast a gloom over the entire community in which the young man lived.

A Dig in the Ribs.

If on the right side and lower part of the diaphragm, though playfully meant and delivered, is calculated to evoke profanity from a chappy whose liver is out of order. When that region is sore and congested, pokes seem fiendish. Look at a man's countenance ere you prod him under the ribs. If his skin and eyeballs have a sallow tinge, you may infer also that his tongue is furred, his breath apt to be sour, that he has pains not only beneath his ribs, but also under the right shoulderblade. Also, that his bowels are irregular and his digestion impaired. Instead of making a jocose demonstration on his ribs, recommend him to take, and steadily persist in taking, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest anti-billious and alterative medicine extant. Incomparable is it, also, for dyspepsia, rheumatism, nervousness, kidney trouble, and fever and ague.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier before the public.

Merit Wins

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all Humors, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, overcomes That Tired Feeling, creates an Appetite, strengthens the Nerves, builds up the Whole System.

An Ancient and Honorable Church.

Connected with the anniversary of the foundation of the celebrated Log College, which was attended by the President and other eminent persons, was the 175th anniversary of the Cold Spring Presbyterian church at Cape May, N. J. It occurred on Thursday of last week. The principal feature of the exercises was an historical address by Rev. Daniel L. Hughes. Prof. Jas. P. Hughes, of this place, was present and made an address.

The grandfather of Rev. James P. Hughes was one of the first pastors of this church, and of twelve of his male descendants eight have been either ministers or elders in the Presbyterian church. This fact shows the influence which a good man will exert over those who come after him.

The Makers of a Well Known Churn write:

"We have been often asked by dairymen: 'What is the very best soap to use to properly cleanse dairy utensils?' We have invariably replied, the 'Ivory,' but as for giving specific directions for washing dairy utensils, it is really summed up in making them thoroughly clean. Boiling water must be used, and that, in connection with IVORY SOAP, will thoroughly cleanse and deodorize the wood, leaving it clean and sweet for further use. Any dairy utensils half cleaned will spoil the delicate aroma of 'gilt edge butter,' which may be perfect in other respects."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be 'just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

HER HEALTH WAS RUINED

HER LIFE WAS ONE OF PAIN, BUT SHE IS NOW WELL.

Mrs. Alexander Vaughn, wife of one of the most prominent and extensively known merchants of Prescott, Ark., writes the following letter under date of April 22, 1889:

"I owe the preservation of my life under Providence to Swift's Specific (S.S.S) For four years my health was wretched, ruined—my life, a life of constant pain, misery and torture. Food soured on my stomach, and what I ate to-day I would vomit to-morrow. My sleep at night was broken with the most horrible visions in dreams, so much so, that I could not bear to be left alone; chronic diarrhœa, a painful cough that theeatened me with consumption; my feet and ankles were twisted out of all proportion, and my limbs swelled more or less. I could not walk except on a level floor, and then with difficulty, and for a while could not get in or out of bed without assistance.

The pressure of a finger on my body would leave its impression, and in short I thought I had dropsy, in addition to my other afflictions.

Two doctors treated me faithfully during these four years but did me no good—the medicines they gave me was as useless as stagnant water. My friends thought I would die, suffering as I was with such a combination of diseases.

In 1887 I discontinued the use of the medicines I had been taking and began to take Swift's Specific (S.S.S.) Five bottles of this truly wonderful medicine was what worked the miracle of my complete and permanent recovery."

The Messrs. Crider's New Mill at Washington Furnace.

MACKEYVILLE, Sept 30, 1889.

MR. EDITOR: Fully a year has passed since I saw an article in your paper entitled "Queens City Mill," which institution is located in Warren county, Pa. Now we believe the same Messrs. Crider are locating at what they call Hull's Gap, in Clinton county. They expect to carry on the lumbering business there for five or six years on what they call the Washington Furnace.

It is a wild locality and while the men have been working there they have been compelled to keep a constant lookout for bears which seem to be especially numerous in that locality. Of wild game there is no lack, from the bear already mentioned to the bee and yellow jacket. More than once a nestful of these painful insects would make such a desperate onslaught on the men, who would consider discretion the better part of valor, and at length under the leadership of a commander would vanish the attacking army with the aid of fire, axes, picks, spikes and mattocks.

The builders of this mill are H C Holter and his crew—an unusually excellent company of workmen. The mill and boarding house are both in process of construction and the mill will be ready for operation within two weeks, if the weather permits.

—There was very much complaint on Sunday evening concerning the large number of young men who stood in front of the Methodist church during the service. We suppose the church was too full for the young men to enter and find seats, but that is no excuse for the fact that they stood outside and often indulged in bolsterous behavior. Let it not be repeated another Sunday night.

THE TIDY STUCK TO HIM

And His Chums Thought He Was Wearing a Convention Badge.

From the Detroit Free Press.

A man who lives on Peterboro street got into a Woodward avenue car yesterday and took a seat. Several persons knew him and looked at him with a smile. The others stared in a most annoying manner.

Pretty soon another man came in and sat down beside him. "Hello, Mac," he said "going to the convention."

"Not that I know of," answered the other, "I have had all the convention business I want for one year."

"Oh! it's an exposish committee this time, I suppose."

"What do you mean?" asked the other shortly.

"Why, I see you are wearing a badge, and it looks like business," and he touched his friend's shoulder.

Mac put up his hand and took from his shoulder a triangle of white satin with gold fringe lace and other decorative art attached to it.

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed, "where did I get that thing? It must have stuck there when I sat down a moment in the new chair. My wife will think there's been a burglary."

He grew very red in the face and everybody laughed as he thrust the tidy in his pocket and muttered something under his breath.

Wrecked on the Rail

THE PASSENGER TRAIN ON THE LEMONT RAILROAD MEETS WITH AN ACCIDENT ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The Passengers Fortunately Escape Without Serious Injury.

AT LEAST $5,000 DAMAGE TO THE RAILROAD COMPANY.

GRAPHIC ACCOUNTS BY SOME OF THE PASSENGERS.

On Friday afternoon the passenger train on the Bellefonte and Lemont railroad was making its usual trip to this place, in control of Conductor Reimer and Engineer Cherry, careful and experienced railroad men.

Near Humes' mill, beyond Axe Mann, the embankment is five or six feet high. At that place the enevitable cow put in appearance, calmly enjoying the succulent qualities of the wooden ties and steel rails. For many years past bovines have done their best to butt against the iron horse and usually were worsted. This time the cow was killed—cleft in twain—but so far as financial damage was concerned the railroad company was the greatest sufferer. The engineer at once tried to stop the train, but it was going pretty rapidly when the cow was struck and sent flying into the air. But it descended on the track again and this time sent the engine from the track. It ran quite a distance on the ties and then went down the embankment. It is fortunate it did not leave the ties at once for it would have plunged from the trestle and upset, causing loss of life. As it was the engine passed over the trestle and went down the embankment. There it stands, quite a distance from the track, in an upright position. The tender, however, upset and both the tender and locomotive are greatly damaged. Following the locomotive was a combination baggage and passenger car in which were quite a number of passengers. The car also passed over the ties a distance of about one hundred feet, shaking all the passengers until they thought that every separate bone was out of place. James Noll, perhaps, escaped most fortunately. He braced his feet against the seat ahead of him and when the car at length came to a standstill he was standing up on his feet. Mr. Robert Voris and Carl Bernhard, a boy who accompanied him, fared worse. The door of the car was forced from its fastenings and imprisoned Mr. Voris and Carl, forcing them almost through the window. They were all right this morning and have got over their scare. Other passengers were Messrs. H. K. Hoy, A. M. Rishel, Reuben Houser, Mr. Peck and lady, George Miller and family, William Collins, Sam Stover, Rush Larimer and Gilbert Beaver. The deadly car stove tried to get in its work, but the flames were suppressed by applications of water. There was plenty of water around, but only a drinking glass in which to carry it from the creek.

Here's a suggestion: Have some large vessels in the car convenient to use on such occasions.

An gent whose name we do not know sustained an injury of the leg. As he hobbled off he said it was the second wreck he had been in this week.

The fireman of the train was prompt and thoughtful in going back to flag the freight train and deserves commendation.

Gilbert Beaver took instantaneous photographs of the wreck, which will be very interesting in the future.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady of this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. —Get a free trial bottle at W. C. Keplinger & Co's. Drug Store.

—One of the things which the wise voter will now do will be to see that he has a receipt showing that he has paid a State or county tax within two years. If he does not have such receipt he will procure it before October 5. Secured after that date will be of no service to him in the way of entitling him to vote at the November election.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

—John Sylvis, who went from Aaronsburg, this county, to Canada sometime ago, to work at the boot and shoe trade, is at home again. He says that workmen are not as well situated in Canada as they are in the United States and he desires to avoid another of the cold Canadian winters. If John was not a Republican when he went away he should be now.

To Our Neighbors.

The question is often asked by our neighbors, "Where I wonder, can I get a pure stimulant?" It is a fact that there is scarcely a roof under which you can not find a stimulant of some kind. Old people prolong life with it; sick people have it to sustain life; well people may and do use it to make life more enjoyable, but where will we advise our readers to buy it? We learn from the most reliable source that Max Klein is one of the most popular and respected citizens of this country. At his home his word is taken unhesitatingly. To him we can cheerfully recommend our readers for anything in the liquor line. He authorizes us to say that for $1.00 you can buy one quart of six year old rye, or six quarts for $5.00. His "Silver Age" at $1.50 per quart is without doubt the best whiskey know. Send for price list and complete catalogue. His address is, Max Klein, 82 Federal St., Allegheny, Pa.

New Railroad Shops near Pittsburgh.

A contract is said to have been ratified on Tuesday by the Pennsylvania Railroad for the erection of commodious car repair and machine shops at Wall's station, the work to be completed by February 1. The principal building will be a circular one, subdivided into eight circles. The outer circumference will be about 432 feet, the second 236, and the third, or court, 100 feet. It will be built partly of brick, stone and iron, and will be well lighted. There will be tracks leading into doorways every few feet apart. Besides the car repair shops a number of other shops will be erected, among which are a machine shop, 91 feet 2 inches by 51 feet 2 inches; blacksmith shop, 102 feet by 60 feet; an oil, glass and paint shop, 83 feet by 10½ feet by 20 feet; a lumber shed 128 feet by 50 feet; a planing mill, 125 feet by 70 feet, and a boiler shop, 30 feet by 40 feet. Over a thousand men will be given employment.

—Warren Mix now languishes in jail at Clearfield charged with forgery by the First National Bank of that place. He was arrested last week at DuBois, by Deputy Sheriff George R. Woodward, of Elk county. Mix is charged with forging the name of Maria Tarbelle to a certificate of deposit for $200 and also with representing himself as J. H. Tarbelle, her husband. Last May Mrs. Maria Tarbelle, a widow lady, who had $200 on deposit in a Lock Haven Bank, went there with her certificate of deposit and collected the interest. She placed the certificate and the cash in a small satchel which she hung upon her arm. In boarding a train at Lock Haven to go to her home she got into a crowd and the satchel was either lost or stolen from her arm. She immediately went to the bank and stopped payment. Later the same month a man representing himself to be J. H. Tarbelle went into the First National Bank of Clearfield and presented the certificate for payment, claiming to be Maria Tarbelle's husband. Her name appeared on the back of the certificate and the scoundrel told such a straight story that he was given the cash. Mix has been positively identified and awaits trial.

Boiler Explosion in Somerset County.

The boiler in one of the lumber mills, at Berlin, Somerset county, exploded Tuesday morning, killing five men, one of whom was David Baker, formerly a sawyer for the Johnstown Lumber Company, and whose home was in the Ligonier Valley. A telegram from Berlin says: One of the saddest accidents in the history of Somerset county occurred here yesterday. The boiler at the saw mill of Pritz Brothers exploded. John Pritz, Edward Pritz, Oliver Ross and David Baker, all well-known young men of this vicinity, were instantly killed. The brothers named Brant, who were near the saw mill, were badly injured, but may recover. The force of the explosion was terrific, and the mill was completely wrecked.

Now is the Time to Subscribe.

It has been reliably ascertained that out of one hundred and eighty-five cases of successful swindling throughout the State by traveling sharpers, in various ways, by which people of the rural districts were robbed, some to the extent of thousands of dollars, only ten were subscribers or readers of the home county papers.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhœa, Eructation, Kills Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 Murray Street, N. Y.

New and Wonderful Preparations.

PSYCHE'S SECRET, OR EXTRACT OF ORIENTAL ROSES FOR Beautifying the Complection Making the Skin Soft, Fair and Rosy as a Healty Infant's.

A MIRACULOUS preparation, that imitates nature to such perfection as to positively defy detection, even with a microscope. Renders the skin semi-transparent, and harmonizes with the blood color of the face, making the pale check a beautiful rosetate tinge. Imparts wonderous beauty to the skin, and brillancy to the eyes; it is entirely different from any other preparation of the kind, as when applyed it remains fixed for at least twenty-four hours, and will not wash or rub off, and yet, remember it is not a paint.

Psyche's Cream of Oriental Roses, An unrivaled preparation for the skin, guaranteed to contain nothing injurious. Cannot be detected. A substitue for face powder, etc., removes Tan, Freckles, and cures all skin diseases making the skin as soft, smooth, and fair as that of a healty infant.

PRICE OF EXTRACT, - - - - 50c
PRICE OF CREAM, - - - - $1.00.

In order to introduce these preparations, we will for next 90 days send sample bottle of either free, to any address, on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage, (or both 25 cents.)

EDISON'S ELECTRO-CHEMICAL-FLUID.

For the Permanent Removal of Superfluous Hair.

From the Forehead, Lips, Chin, Arms, or any portion of the Face or Body, without Pain.

AFTER centuries of fruitless study and research by the world's ablest chemists, we have at last discovered a liquid preparation which we guarantee to permanently remove superfluous hair from any part of the face or body in TWO MINUTES, without pain or injury to the skin.

There are many dilapatories for the removal of superfluous hair, but all of them are either inefficacious or of little moment. The Electro-Chemical Fluid on the contrary, effects its purpose thoroughly and permanently. It supersedes the razor, renders the scizors unnecessary, and is WARRANTED to remove superfluous hair completely, totally and radically extirpating the disfigurement, leaving the skin smooth, soft and natural.

Price per bottle, - - - - - $3.00.
Large bottles, containing four times the quantity, - 5.00.

In order to introduce this preparation, we will for next 90 days, send sample bottle free, to any address. Send two cent stamp for postage.

For sale by Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers generally, or sent to any address on receipt of price. An energetic agent wanted in every town to introduce these preparations. Liberal terms. NICHOLS & CO., General Agents, 46 West 14th St., New York.

—In courting days we sometimes strolled
Within the gloaming fair,
And oft I stooped and gayly plucked
A flower from out her hair.

But now since wed I often look
With sadness on the hour.
As eating home-made bread I pluck
A hair from out the flour.

R. fine trains the other evening, the conductor remarked that he must go to the next sleeper to collect sixteen first-class fares, and explained that there was nobody in the car but a bride and groom and their servants. They wanted exclusion, and had to pay for it. Their wedding trip, for car fare alone, cost them hundreds of dollars.

THEY MAY DISTINGUISH THEMSELVES.

And Whether they do or not it will at Least be Enjoyable.

The twenty-second annual State Convention of the Y. M. C. A. is to be held at New Castle on the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th of October. The New Castle people are preparing to entertain five hundred delegates and special railroad rates will be secured. The call for the convention contains the following paragraph to which we invite special attention:

"The Athletic committee desires to state, that twenty lawn tennis courts will be placed at the disposal of the delegates. Also, the gymnasium will be open for class drill and individual exercise, under the care of competent instructors, and base ball games will be played on the Association's Athletic grounds. The Athletic committee ask that delegates will kindly bring their athletic suits and rackets with them."

Of course, the general reader will bear in mind that athletic exercises and sports are not to be the principle feature of the convention. Most of the time will be spent in consideration of the spiritual improvement of the delegates and in their equipment for Christian work, but it is this athletic feature about which we desire to offer suggestions.

Mr. Rees, the libravian of the Association here, says that New Castle has one of the best base ball nines in the State. He would like as many as possible of Bellefonte's famous Y. M. C. A. base ball club to go to New Castle and play a game there. Heretofore they have been invincible. As State College has an Association the delegates from that institution might combine and the team which has defeated Philadelphia, Altoona, and Bucknell University could give the New Castleites a very interesting game. Then there are several tennis players here who might also go as delegates and show their skill with the racket.

All who can go on that occasion are requested to report to G. W. Rees and he will attend to the duty of procuring orders for excursion tickets.

License Revoked.

We copy from the Erie Gazette the following article with reference to the Summer Resort owned and controlled by Hon. Wm. L. Scott:

LANDLORD CAMPBELL'S LICENSE REVOKED FOR REPEATED VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW.

James Campbell, landlord of the hotel at the Head, appeared before Judge Gunnison Friday to show cause why his license should not be revoked for selling to minors. The evidence against him was simply overwhelming and shows a state of affairs that is a disgrace to the county. A dozen half grown lads testified to getting drinks repeatedly, one boy of sixteen, with a peachy cheek and soft complexion that could not have been taken for twenty-one under any circumstances, testified that he had fifteen glasses of beer there one day, and almost as many at other times.

Campbell's defense was ignorance. He said he had instructed his bartenders to sell no drinks to minors and wouldn't have permitted it had he known it. He denied that he had ever shut off the supply of drinking water there in order to increase the demand for beer, but at several of the big picnics there this year it was far more troublesome to get waser than it was to buy beer. Under the testimony it seems as if the revels at the Head in which little boys participated ought to have been stopped months ago.

Judge Gunnison promptly revoked the license.

The above is almost a parallel case to one in our own county which is to be disposed of by the October court.

—Major Wolfe, of Philipsburg, was passing a barber shop in that place a few days ago when he saw his bosom friend lying back in a barber chair waiting to be lathered. Stepping in, the Major quickly seized the cup of lather and brush from the hands of the lather boy and grabbed his friend by the hair and proceeded to slop lather into his mouth, nose and eyes with a reckless prodigality. To his consternation the lathered man sat up in the chair and rubbing the soapy foam out of his mouth and eyes, ejaculated in a voice husky with rage and soap, "What in the Sam Hill are you at, you blasted fool?" It wasn't his friend at all, but a very dignified elderly merchant, who doesn't relish jokes a bit. When the Major recovered from his fit of horrified stupefaction, he apologized very humbly and explained his conduct and the victim kindly forgave him, but the Major says the next time he tries his hand at the barber business he'll know his man.

—A question of which member of a family that were all drowned at Johnstown died first is the intricate point which the courts will try to decide. Robert Melcer and his family are the decedent, and the parents of both himself and wife are the contestants. Both the older families live at Transylvania, Europe. The question is, Who died first? If the wife succumbed first, the property was inherited by the husband and goes to his relatives, and vice versa. There is not a bit of proof as to the time at which the couple met their death. There is a precedent on the subject in general in some English court, it is believed, the case was where a whole family perished in a catastrophe. The English court gave the property to the husband's relatives on the ground that the weakest person would give way first. There may be many queer developments.

Hastings' Speech at Pittsburgh.

The Pennsylvania Republican League at Pittsburgh, wanted some oratory so Adjt. Gen. Hastings arose and treated them to the following:

I am proud to have an opportunity to stand in front of so splendid a representative body as this. It means 60,000 majority for Henry Boyer, if it means anything. A great party, we here see, can rise above its factions, its internecine differences, and attain heights upon which rest liberty and purity and nobility. Pennsylvania is always looked to to take the lead. In her eastern metropolis was the cradle of liberty, and in this busy metropolis—this teeming bee hive of industry—was the official birth of the Republican party accomplished—aye, in this very hall. The Republican banner was looked upon with loving eyes by 400,000 slaves when we struck the galling shackles of slavery. The Republican party exchanged Grover for Harrison [cheers] and when Grover went down free trade went with him. Protection is the great national principles and it is a cardinal tenet of our platform, past, present and future. In the contest before us every last one of our principles are in issue, every victory, every triumph are involved in this campaign. We challenge every allegation that the opposition can make in regard to the Republican administration of the State Treasury. For H. K. Boyer this convention will answer in November.

Wedding on Wednesday Afternoon.

A wedding event of a peculiarly enjoyable character occurred on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mr. William Jamison, on South Spring street. It was the occasion of the marriage of his daughter, Miss Minnie, and Mr. W. E. Hendrickson, who is bookkeeper for W. I. Fleming, the tailor. Rev. William Laurie, D. D., officiated and there was a very pleasant company present. The bride is a charming young lady, well fitted to be helpful and lovable as a life companion. The groom is well known and deservedly popular.

The feast which followed the ceremony was a most sumptuous and elegant spread, evincing the good taste and culinary skill of Mrs. William Jamison and, also that of the bride herself. The 5.20 p. m. train carried them away on a brief honeymoon journey. We beg to unite with other friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hendrickson a life all the hours of which shall be those of happiness and every period shall be one of pleasure. We acknowledge the receipt of a box containing some of the choice edibles that accompanied the wedding feast.

Unionville Items.

Jack Frost put in an appearance on Monday morning, but did very little damage.

Henry Iddings, an old citizen of this place, was laid to rest in the cemetery on Monday, having died after a short illness, at Bellwood, on Friday last, where he had gone to see friends.

Mrs. A. N. Russell is yet very ill.

Squirrel hunting is the order of the day among our sportsmen.

Mr. Williams, of Port Matilda, who has a contract for building a mill dam across the Bald Eagle creek here, will soon have the work completed.

Jesse Cleaver expected to go to the Grange picnic to meet friends, but just at that time was attacked with severe illness from which he has now recovered. J.

A Good Guitar Instructor.

Now that Prof. Johnson C. Bane has completed his course of instruction on the Guitar to his class in this place, it will be to the advantage of all students, in order to become proficient performers, to procure an Instructor that is more extended than the one used by Prof. Bane, and yet one that is simple, plain and easily understood. One that we can recommend as "just the thing" is Schuman's Guitar Instructor, published by BALMER & WEBER, St. Louis, Mo. Sent to any address, postpaid, for 75 cents. It also contains a choice collection of guitar music.

—Notices concerning Eliza Jamison Stanton, the aged colored woman at Buffalo Run, are being widely copied throughout the state. The DAILY NEWS first called attention to this aged woman. She has been residing in this county so long that the memory of the other oldest resident runneth not to the contrary. She was not a slave, having lived about all her life in Pennsylvania. She thinks nothing of carrying buckets of berries a long distance and delivering them at the farm houses in the neighborhood. In this way this woman at the age of almost 115 years, makes considerable money.

—The Watchman calls attention to what it alleges to be a fact, that during the past five or six years farm land has been decreasing in value. Let's see. It was just about five years ago that the Democrats were given a temporary and destructive lease of authority, and then it was in 1883—six years ago—that the tariff was reduced. What a strong argument this is in favor of Republican dominance and a high tariff.

READY FOR WORK.

The Bellefonte and Eastern Railroad to be Built at Once.

Among the recent visitors to Sugar Valley were J I Higbee, who is superintendent of the Bellefonte and Eastern Railroad; H C Richter, chief engineer, and Mr Charles Gould. They arrived there last week and at once began to locate the line and make necessary arrangements preparatory to commencing work on the road. It is understood that they mean business and have erected several buildings in which their laborers will live while at work on the line. Superintendent Higbee states that employment will first be given to Americans who may want the work and if a sufficient number are procured no Italians will be employed. The people of that vicinity are very much delighted at the present prospects that the road will be so speedily built, and there will be no difficulty in securing right of way.

How to Cook Steak.

The Bellefonte ladies are the best cooks in the world, and we don't suppose we can give them any points of value. But if any of them want to read of a way of cooking steak which is highly recommended here it is:

Now, if you want a good bit of steak have a clear, hot fire, set your clean empty pan on a spot, cover it up, then pound your steak, and when your pan is very hot lay in your steak, and cover it quickly. As soon as it has crisped enough to let go its hold on the pan, turn over and cover quickly; turn again as at first, and continue to do so about every two minutes until you have turned it six or eight times. Have a hot buttered dish ready for it and lay it in; add a sprinkling of pepper, salt and sugar, and cover tightly. Now if you wish a gravy, put a bit of butter in your pan, when hot rub in a pinch of flour, add a teacupful of boiling water, let it boil a few minutes, then put into a gravy boat instead of putting it over your beef to draw out the juice. Now try the plan just once, and you will see women know nothing about cooking a good steak.

An Opinion Expressed.

The report of the double murder in the Philipsburg Ledger concludes with the following paragraph:

Mrs. Esther Wighaman was aged 56 years. She was the second daughter of William and Margaret Myers, dec'd, and was born at Stormstown, in this county. She was married to James Wighaman, who died several years ago. They had two children, Maggie, whose death is recorded in this account (aged 21) and Robert, who is aged about 17 years. Mrs. Wighaman was a devoted wife and mother and a woman of excellent reputation and much respected. The murder of her and her daughter is one of the cruelest peices of wanton wickedness that was ever committed and if Hopkins lives he will undoubtedly be hung, as he richly deserves.

—The reports of more than the usual number of typhoid cases this fall, through out the country, call attention again to the healthfulness of Bellefonte. There has not been an instance of illness in Bellefonte this season that could be traced to climate, location or unhealthful surroundings. The general health of of the people is remarkable and all the deaths which have occurred were from old age, some disease of long standing or some sudden stroke, such as paralysis or apoplexy. It is true there have been a few cases of typhoid, but that was only because the persons thus afflicted were removed here for cure, and in each instance they have improved. It's a pleasure to note that Bellefonte and vicinity are so highly favored in this respect.

—It was a week ago on Saturday morning that Mr. B. M. Campbell, the young baritone virtuoso, left this place for Defiance, Ohio. He had been instructing the Fillmore Band and quite frequently accompanied other bands which they were desirous of rendering unusually fine music, and was considered by all a valuable acquisition. Though only nineteen years of age he is a most skillful and excellent musician, and his departure from Bellefonte will be regretted by those who knew his ability. He is fortunate also in being such an excellent printer and he can combine the two very profitably. Those who met Mr. Campbell while here regarded him very highly and while they are sorry that he is gone will wish him the best possible success.

—The fire which destroyed Dale & Co's store, at Centre Hall, last Saturday morning at 1.15 o'clock was more than usually startling, and the origin of it is not certainly known. There were several canisters of powder in the building and they exploded in quick succession, the first explosion being so powerful that all the glass was shaken from the windows. The building was not insured, but the stock, which was valued at $4,000, was insured for $3200. The bucket brigade did effective work in saving adjoining property.

—A judgment obtained against a defaulting boarder whose indebtedness covers a period of four weeks or less is no longer subject to exemption of property from levy and sale, as formerly. This law was signed by Governor Beaver in last April, and will head off a little army of rogues who go up and down the land beating boarding house keepers out of their just dues.

Excursion Tickets to the State Fair and County Fair at York.

The Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society having joined forces with the York County Agricultural Society, the united bodies will hold a joint exhibition at York, beginning September 30th and continuing until October 5th. The York fair by itself is one of our best exhibitions, and reinforced by that of the State, it will undoubtedly be an extensive and interesting exposition of the products of Pennsylvania.

For the benefit of visitors the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to York from principal stations within the State, September 28th to October 5th, valid for return until October 7th, at reduced rates.

—It seems that out in Milwaukee, where the soldiers' encampment was held they have just discovered that one hundred thousand people who sat on the hill side watching a sham battle, were in desperate danger of their lives. It has been discovered that the hillside is slipping and had it come down like an avalanche while these people were there it would have crushed the life out of many of them. It seems that there is safety no place when even the ground beneath one's feet is slipping away.

Reopening of the Methodist Church.

The Methodist church in Bellefonte (which has been undergoing extensive repairs for the past two months) will be reopened on Sunday next. Rev. Geo. E. Reed, D.D., L. L. D., President of Dickinson College, will occupy the pulpit morning and evening.

A most cordial invitation is extended to the general public to join the congregation in holy worship on Sabbath next.

—The Department at Washington has received dispatches from Minister Whitelaw Ried stating that the French Government had apologized for the arrest and discourteous treatment of two New York ladies at Mentone, several months ago, also that the French government had severely reprimanded the officials that made the arrest. Protection to American citizens, at home and abroad, is no idle boast under this administration.

—Miss Laura Eckley, daughter of William Eckley, of near this place, died Saturday, at 2 o'clock a. m., of consumption. The funeral was held at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon; interment in Union cemetery.

Only Temperance Bitters Known.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL — CALIFORNIA — DR. WALKER'S — EUREKA

VINEGAR BITTERS

The Only Non-Alcoholic Vegetable Medicine put up in Liquid Form ever discovered.

It is not a vile fancy drink made of rum, poor whisky, or refuse liquors, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, but a purely vegetable preparation, made from native California herbs.

Twenty-five years' use have demonstrated to millions of sufferers throughout the civilized world, that of all the medicines ever discovered Vinegar Bitters only possesses perfect and wonderful curative effects upon those troubled with the following diseases, viz:

Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Headache, Boils, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Jaundice, Gout, Piles, Billiousness, and all other diseases arising from blood impurities, and as a Vermifuge it is the best in the world, being death to all worms that infest the human system.

It is always safe to take at any time, or under any condition of the system, for old or young or for either sex. It is put up in two styles. The old is slightly bitter, and is the stronger in cathartic effect. The new style is very pleasant to the taste and a perfect medicine for delicate women or children. Each kind is distinctly marked on top of cartoon.

Many families keep both kinds on hand, as they form a complete medicine chest.

As a Family Medicine, for the use of ladies, children and men of sedentary habits, the New Style Vinegar Bitters has no equal in the world. It is invaluable for curing the ills that beset childhood, and gently regulates the diseases to which women at every period of life are subject.

Ladies, get a bottle from your druggist and try it. If your druggist has not the New Style Vinegar Bitters, ask him to send for it. If you once try it you will never be without this priceless remedy in the house.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

The only Temperance Bitters known. It stimulates the Brain and quiets the Nerves, regulates the Bowels and renders a perfect circulation through the human veins, which is sure to restore perfect health.

GEO W DAVIS, of 169 Barrone St., New Orleans, La., writes under date May 26th, 1888, as follows: "I have been going to the Hot Springs, Ark., for fifteen years for an itching humor in my blood. I have just used three bottles of Vinegar Bitters, and it has done me more good than the springs. It is the best medicine made."

JOSEPH J. EGAN, of No. 75 West St, New York, says: "Have not been without Vinegar Bitters for the past twelve years and consider it a whole medicine chest in our family."

MRS. MATTIE FURGUSON, of Dryden, N. Y. says: "Vinegar Bitters is the best medicine I ever tried; it saved my life."

T. F. BAILEY, of Humboldt, Iowa, says: Vinegar Bitters cured me of paralysis ten years ago, and recently it cured me of rheumatism."

VINEGAR BITTERS.

The Great Blood and Health Restorer. Cures all kinds of Headache, also Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

A sea-serpent, 103 feet long, was seen to coil itself up in slippery folds on the coast of Florida last month. Three reliable persons saw this creature distinctly.

Reader, the above is a "yarn." If people would believe the following truthful statement as readily as they swallow sea-serpent stories, it would be the means of saving thousands of lives. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, if taken in time and given a fair trial, will actually cure consumption of the lungs, which is really scrofulous disease. If this wonderful medicine does not do all we recommend, when taken as directed, we will cheerfully and promptly return all money paid for it. Can any offer be more generous or fair? No other medicine possesses sufficient power over that fatal malady—Consumption, to warrant its manufacturers in selling it under such trying conditions. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not only the most wonderful alterative, or blood-cleanser, known to medical science, but also possesses superior nutritive and tonic, or strength-giving properties, which assist the food to digest and become assimilated, thus building up both strength and flesh. For all cases of Bronchial, Throat and Lung Diseases, accompanied with lingering coughs, it is absolutely unequaled as a remedy. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, and kindred affections, it surpasses all other medicines.

$500 REWARD is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Catarrh in the Head which they cannot cure. By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases, no matter how bad, or of how long standing. Fifty cents, by druggists.

Local Department.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY—A GOOD GIRL to do general housework. Work light and wages good. Reference required. Apply at 41 East Lamb St., or at this office.

—Leaves are falling plentifully.

—The foliage is late changing color.

—More sunshine would be welcome.

—Barnum's season closed in Altoona on Saturday.

—The steam heat has been circulating for several days.

—During the entire summer there have been very few fair days.

—Tuesday opened the deer and pheasant season and hunters are delighted.

—Ex-Gov. Hartranft would be thoroughly acceptable as Commissioner of Pensions.

—Mr. Herman Aikey, while hunting recently, secured fifty-six squirrels in five days.

—The 76th Pennsylvania Volunteers will hold a reunion at Beaver Falls on the 3d of October.

—Miss Mary Frazer, of New York City died last Friday morning at four o'clock. She was a sister in-law of Mrs. Austin Curtin.

—The miners at Philipsburg and Houtzdale have collected $1500 for the suffering miners in William L. Scotts' employ in Illinois.

—The potato crop throughout the country this year is the largest ever known. It exceeds last year's crop by 17,000,000 bushels.

—The excursion tickets to Sunbury on the 9th inst., when the G. A. R. assembles in that place, will be good to return until the following day.

—Hon. John A. Otto, a very prominent and wealthy citizen of Williamsport, died suddenly in that city at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning.

—Robert G Ford, who was recently General Superintendent of the Bell's Gap Railroad, died on Sunday at Pueblo, Colorado, of heart trouble.

—Mr. F. B. Stover is greatly improving his house by making the roof much higher and ornamenting the front with handsomely shaped windows.

—An innocent little sparrow which found its way into the Methodist church on Sunday evening, seriously excited the entire congregation for a long time.

—Capt. W. R. Jones, who was so seriously burned by the flow of molten steel at the Carnegie-Thompson furnace at Braddock, last week, died at 10.30 o'clock on Saturday night.

—Lock Haven, Williamsport and Sunbury base ball dudes cross bats with the girls, while in Bellefonte the base ballists are accustomed to tackle persons of their own size and sex.

—Four children of John Cain and wife, of Altoona, died of diphtheria last week, and two more of the same family who are afflicted with the same malignant disease, are not expected to recover.

—Frank Courter of Eagleville, and R. H. Smith, of Milesburg, while hunting for squirrels on Monday were successful in getting forty pine squirrels, two black and one gray—a total of 43. We expect them to send the editor a half dozen.

—Next Friday evening the annual meeting will be held by the Y. M. C. A. for the election of officers for the ensuing year. As this is, of ocurse, important, it is desirable that there shall be a large attendance. Meeting will begin at 7.30 o'clock.

—A Hungarian miner named Mike Ketch, at Allport bank No. 10, operated by R. B. Wigton & Co., of Philipsburg, was murdered on Sunday last. The Huns at the time were engaged in a festivity of some sort. Murder seems to be a favorite amusement with these Hungarians.

—The "Lion Coffee," sold at the Eureka grocery store, is very superior. Mr. Willian H Peters, a resident of Bellefonte, represents the Woolson Spice Company, of Toledo, Ohio, which roasts this coffee. He lives on Penn street, in Mr. R M Magee's house. He says the coffee is everywhere receiving an extensive sale.

—Constable Gordon, of Philipsburg, arrived here Monday morning having in charge W. Seely Hopkins, of that place, who murdered his wife and mother-in-law. Hopkins looks very feeble and his countenance has a serious appearance, as might be expected. Dr. Dorworth, who examined him, said that his condition is favorable and the journey to Bellefonte did not have a bad effect.

REOPENED!

THE BEAUTIFULLY REDECORATED M. E. CHURCH CONTAINS TWO VAST CONGREGATIONS ON SUNDAY.

Sermons of Soul Stirring Powers and Eloquence by Rev. George E Reed, D. D., LL D.

OTHER SERVICES OF AN IMPRESSIVE CHARACTER.

The painters and decorators who ornamented the interior of the M. E. church must have been inspired and double skill must have lent itself to their fingers for this special task. Did the beautiful room appear lovely when we saw it on Saturday? Yes; but that is nothing to the vision of beauty that greeted us when we entered on Sunday morning. What a harmony of blue and gold is there on ceilings and side walls, above pulpit desk and near choir enclosure! Aye, on the polished pews and in the deep, rich, soft, yielding carpet. It looks as if bits of heaven's blue mingled with golden sunsets had been taken and placed where it would harmonize best. Flowers around the pulpit added their glory to the effect.

Above the pulpit space is the text in illuminated gold letters: "The Lord is in His Holy Temple." On the wall behind the choir the words of Scripture are; "The Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob;" And on the other side, equally prominent, we read· "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise."

There was a large congregation in the morning. Rev. Geo. E Reed, D. D., was in the pulpit with Rev. W A Houck, the pastor, and Rev. J A Woodcock. The choir, instead of being in their usual place, were in the gallery. They began the service with a voluntary, "God be Merciful," which was a suitable introduction to what was to follow. Then the congregation sung hymn No. 72, Dr. Reed prayed with special unction, and the pastor read Psalm 118 and the 5th chapter of Revelation for the morning lesson. The 76th hymn was announced by Rev. Woodcock and after it was sung, Dr. Reed began his sermon from the text in Ephesians 5:19—"Speaking to yourselves in Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord."

But first let us refer to the preacher, for the pastor, in introducing him, said he was not well known around here. He is very handsome, not over 40 years of age and quite military looking. His face, however, is gentle and benevolent in expression, His moustache and hair are dark and his features fine. His voice is strong and musical and under perfect control. Indeed, he can speak with dramatic effect and we have heard nothing finer anywhere than his repetition of the closing stanza of hymn No. 1033, as if a dying man were endeavoring to sing it. The effect of his delivery here and in other parts of his discourse was wonderfully strong.

CHRISTIAN SONGS.

Every nation, he said, has its National song. The French have the Marseilles; the English, "Rule Brittania;" also Scottland and Germany. In America, "My Country 'tis of Thee," "Star Spangled Banner," "Hail Columbia," and "Freedom" alike arouse our patriotism. No wonder that one said "If I can write the songs of a country I care not who makes its laws."

If national songs have this affect, still greater is the effect of spiritual songs on the Christian. They express Christian doctrines in a more satisfactory and impressive manner than when formulated in prose.

It is a fact that only in Christian nations—where the Lord Jesus is preached—does this inspiration of song exist.

Africa never produced a child of song. The songs of the slaves were in the major key. There was nothing of hope and inspiration about them, but much cadeance and pathos. Asia never produced a Parepa Rosa or a Christine Nilsson. With our Christian missionaries we send to Africa song books and organs.

Even in Patriarchal times God's people were a singing people and sang in strains of lofty poetry. Miriam and her singing maidens were quoted as an illustration.

No man ever composed a great hymn who had not passed through a severe affliction. David's sorrows caused him the deepest woe, but he esteemed it an honor to write the hymns of the people. When the Israelites were in bondage they lamented that they could not sing the songs of Zion. Christ came to earth amid the breathings of angelic choirs, and the song then sung has been called the "Magnificat;"

Christians continued to make music a prominent part of their worship and Pliny, the historian, called attention to this singular custom among those who are the followers of Christ. Songs live longer than empires. The "Gloria in Excelsis Deo" is 1500 years old. Much fine music has come to us through the Roman Catholic church.

Refering to the Christian songs sung in all homes in England, he said that the heart of the Englishman seems saturated with Christian poetry and song. Bishop Kemp's doxology has been sung through a period coeval with the first planting of Christianity in this Commonwealth. How grand to be the author of that sweet hymn of Isaac Watts "Hush, my babe, lie still and slumber, Holy angels guard thy bed." Henry Ward Beecher had said that he would rather be the author of "Jesus Lover of my Soul," than to be a great preacher.

He mentioned Charles Wesley, who was the author of 7,000 hymns, as the greatest of hymn writers. He referred hastily, but with much beauty and eloquence to scores of others and held the undivided attention of the listeners fully one hour and a quarter.

While the collection was being lifted Miss Stott and Mr. Feidler sang a wonderfully sweet duet, and the rare quality and fine cultivation of Miss Stott's voice as it filled with sweetest melody the entire church challenged the admiration of lovers of music.

IN SUNDAY SCHOOL

in the afternoon Rev. Dr. Reed addressed the teachers and pupils. Adjt. Gen. Hastings was expected to speak, but did not do so, which was a disappointment as the General was at one time superintendent of the school.

OBEDIENT TO THE VISION.

Many people are even more enthusiastic in their praise of the evening sermon than that of the morning, and it was certainly very fine. The congregation was immense, crowding every available space. Rev. James P Hughes was with the other ministers in the pulpit and took part in the opening services.

Dr. Reed's text was from Acts 26:19. "Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." His description of the scene was realistic and startling. The aristocratic Festus who said that Paul's relation of the vision was but the vaporings of a madman. The corrupt Agrippa, who made the much quoted remark "Almost, thou persuadest me to be a Christian." This the speaker said is an incorrect translation, the real rendering of the passage changing its meaning. It was as if he said in contempt—"Thinkest thou by such words to make me a Christian?" The presence of the wicked Bernice was referred to, but none of these things daunted Paul, who was glad to speak before royalty the things which he had heard and seen. The character of the vision was explained in the light of Gospel knowledge. Where Paul said he also saw Christ as one born out of due time, it must refer to this and the vision was the effulgent and transfigured face of Chirst.

That all men see visions was proclaimed as a truth. James A Garfield and U S Grant had visions and the speaker showed how these men were obedient to them. John Bunyan saw a vision and the man who was the chief in every convivial gathering as well as the terror of all because of his physical strength and his indulgence in drink became one of the most earnest and devoted Christians, so harmless that children gathered about him without fear.

Most beautiful was a reference he made to a vision in the natural world which he had seen. Standing on the top of a vast cathedral and looking at the heavy fog, it suddenly was brushed aside as a curtain and he saw the glorious spectacle of a mountain in the distance covered with snow. A fine picture was that of the boy in school who was the principal spirit in every mischief, such as turning pins at right angles and placing them where they could do most good. He looked long and earnestly through the school house window at the blue sky. A change came into his life, and people are wondering what has made the marvelous change in the lad. The speaker urged his hearers to be obedient to the vision which would come to each one.

—On Monday morning Hon. Henry R. Boyer, Republican candidate for State Treasurer; Hon. E A Bigler, Democratic candidate for the same office, and Adie Allen Stevens, State Chairman of the Prohibitionists, all met together in Tyrone and had an animated convrsaetion. What they talked about can only be a subject of conjecture. The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Tribune tells how they separated, as follows: Brother Stevens took advantage of the seashore express and proceeded to the Pemberton stone quarries, where, with his little dinner basket, he put in the day in sledging limestone boulders and attempting to hammer into his head some plan whereby he might circumvent the rapid growth and popularity of that rascally republican party. Brother Boyer with that serenity fully depicted upon every linament of his pleasant countenance, which presaged success in the coming ides of November, left shortly after on Bald Eagle Valley mail for the city of Bellefonte, his destination for the day, followed by brother Bigler on the Tyrone and Clearfield mail for his home at Clearfield, where he will take a much needed rest for a time and ruminate upon the facts contained in the words of the poet:

Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these, it might have been.

THE HOUSEKEEPER'S PRIZE.

THE USEFUL AND BEAUTIFUL WASHING MACHINE OF WHICH MR. T. M. MAITLAND IS THE PATENTEE.

Mr. T. M. Maitland, of Williamsport, is the guest of his brother, W. B. Maitland, proprietor of the boiler works. On Tuesday he called us into his brother's office to look at a washing machine of which he is the patentee. It was only August of this year that Mr. Maitland patented this useful and simple machine, and it is so much superior and more simple than any other that it will soon be used everywhere.

It consists of a frame 19x27 inches in dimensions. Inside of this is a washboard on the lower surface of the frame, over which a set of metal covered rollers pass as the machine is operated with the hand. These rollers are connected with the handle above and as the person manipulating the machine passes the hand back and forth, that one movement washes the clothes and pumps a constant stream of water on them. It is easily done, too. To show what delicate fabrics can be washed absolutely without damage, Mr. Mailand washed a piece of paper without tearing it at all. The operation of washing is constantly in full view of the washer and any parts of the garment can be adjusted to receive the full force of the machine's cleansing power, to the exclusion of the rest, if desired. All who have attempted to wash the wristbands and collar of a shirt in the ordinary washing machine can understand this advantage.

We believe ladies will be charmed with it and surprised when they hear that a machine costs only $6. Mr. Maitland is willing to sell the territory of Centre county at advantageous terms. Here is a grand opportunity for some young man to make money. We understand that Mr. Maitland will give the purchaser the right to manufacture the machine if he so desires, and for this reason it will be an especially good opportunity for a first-class carpenter. Mr. Maitland may be found at the boiler works.

—The Governor's Troop of Harrisburg is just now indulging in a racket that may result disastrously to the organization. Before the recent encampment, the captain of the troop preferred charges against the first lieutenant for dereliction of duty, and notified him not to appear in camp in uniform, but the lieutenant disregarded the captain's orders, and turning up at camp was detailed for officer of the guard the first day. The captain protested and the order was revoked detailing the lieutenant for duty, who then doffed his uniform, and that ended the trouble in camp. Since that time it seems about forty of the troop members held a meeting and passed resolutions protesting against the lieutenant's further persecution by the captain on account of jealousy of the latter, as they assert, and appealing to General Gobin, commander of the third brigade, to depose the captain. A committee of five of the troop carried the resolutions to General Gobin, who promises to investigate the matter and show fair play. In the mean time the captain discharged about fifteen of his members for insubordination, but General Goben says he will not recognize this action of the captain, until it is clear that he is justified in imposing such severe punishment. So the matter rests, and the end may be a complete disruption of the troop, but we hope for better things.

What the Goose Bone Says.

Some one who has read the goose bone prophecy for the coming winter explains it: It indicates more regular weather than last year and not so severe as even the last mild winter. There will not be many days during which running water will freeze. The coldest weather will occur during the latter half of January, and during that time there will be several days of freezing.

Near the point of the bone is a marked discoloration, showing that the first day of winter will give proof of the season's change. Christmas will be "green," but wet and cold. January's entrance will be marked with warm days, growing gradually colder. The coldest day of winter will be January 27. The brief spell of severe weather will be succeeded by heavy thaws, and the traditional January thaw will come in February. This month will be a disagreeable one, with heavy snows and rains. An early and decided thaw is among the promises of the bone. February will burst into March with swollen mountain streams, and disastrous floods may be looked for. There will be an early spring.

Kicked by a Horse.

On Tuesday of this week Mr. Henry Heaton, who lives beyond the divide back of Milesburg, was severely kicked by a horse and is suffering very greatly from the effect of his wounds. The animal kicked him viciously in the face stomach, leaving his face terribly bruised and probably causing internal injuries. His injuries, it is feared, may result fatally.

The Day of Atonement.

Next Saturday will be another Jewish holiday and all places of business of people of the Hebrew faith will be closed. The Day of Atonement is observed by fasting and prayer. The day begins properly at 6 p. m. Friday evening and closes at 6 p. m. Saturday evening.

Personal Pencilings.

Miss Direction kills the dead letters.

Senator Quay was 56 years old on Sunday.

Hon. H. K. Boyer went from Bellefonte to Lock Haven.

Geo. W. Bain, the temperance lecturer, will speak in Tyrone Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hendrickson have returned from their wedding tour.

Mr. D. I. Garman, of Philadelphia, is in town to attend the wedding on Thursday.

Adam Zeigler, of Linden Hall, is a student in Williamsport Commercial College.

We regret to hear of the illness of Col. D. S. Dunham at the home of his son in this place.

Mrs. Charles Gilmour of Tyrone, is visiting at the home of her parents, in this place.

Miss Blanche Swaney, a very bright young girl of Philipsburg, is visiting Miss Jennie Powers, of this place.

Miss Rose Smale, of Lock Haven, is a visitor in Bellefonte, coming on Friday evening. She is the guest of Miss Clara Anderson.

Messrs. John P Shaughensey, James Conroy and Thomas Jennings have gone to Muncy, Ind., to work in the glass works at that place.

Mr. G. G. McGirk, of Lewistown, was an arrival in town last Monday, he will depart this afternoon for Lemont where he will take charge of a school.

Hon. A O Furst, the dignified and good-looking President Judge of the district, went on the fast line to Lock Haven on Wednesday afternoon.

Prof. Geo. P. Bible, wife and baby arrived on Friday at 5.20 p. m. from Lock Haven and will visit for a few days days at the residence of Mr. Bradley.

Miss Maggie Kunes, of Eagleville, is the guest of Mrs. Smith at Castanea, Clinton county, and on Thursday evening a part was given in Miss Kunes honor.

Henry S Ives & Co., of New York, as all our readers know, failed for $17,000,000. The surprising part of it is that Henry, the head of the firm, is only 24 years old.

Mr. Alf. Martin, of Clearfield, has been visiting his friends in this place. Mr. Martin was at one time a resident of Bellefonte and his numerous friends here were very glad to see him.

Mr. C. K. Sober, of Sober P. O., this county, who is perhaps the champion marksman of the world, shot on exhibition display at blue rocks at the Lewisburg fair on Thursday, making a wonderful record.

Mr. Will Marshall, of Bellefonte, who has been working in this city for the past month, left for Tyrone yesterday where he accepted a position of operator in the broker's office of that place.—Altoona Mirror.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Blackburne, of Devon, Chester county, Pa., will celebrate their wooden wedding on the 30th of September. Mrs. Blackburne was formerly Miss Landis of this place. Even the cards of invitation were printed with wood types.

Mr. Harry Lucas, who was a resident of Bellefonte two years ago, has been in Philadelphia meanwhile with a situation on the railroad. He is now a conductor. On Monday he arrived to visit his relatives in this vicinity, remaining only a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Mitchell, of Pine Grove Mills, arrived in Bellefonte Thursday morning and are guests of Mr. James Mitchell and family, on Spring street. Mr. Mitchell is a former treasurer of Centre county and is one of its most highly honored citizens.

Prof. D D Stroup, practical phrenologist and physiognomist, is at the Fountain house, where he will receive callers every afternoon and evening for a week. He announces himself as a graduate in phrenology and, in examining persons who call on him, will be able to give them very accurate information as to what should be their pursuit in life, who they should marry, etc. Francis Speer is particularly interested in securing a suitable life partner and he will hasten to consult the Professor on the matrimonial question.

On Thursday we were surprised and pleased to greet Mr. John DeWitt, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the first time we have seen him for a year or longer. He formerly visited Bellefonte frequently as a "mercantile tourist," but is now engaged in a line of business which renders his visits less frequent. He is in the employ of the American Press Association, and is giving special attention to the music department of that organization. He says that the music which is thus supplied is the newest and the best, and we may give our readers a specimen of it soon. Mr. DeWitt is himself a composer of merit and many of our readers know his vocal skill as he has sung in the choirs of both the Episcopal and Presbyterian churches while here. Among the first songs and music we shall publish will be one of which he is the composer, which will for that reason be received with additional interest.

Miss Grace Furey, a bright and talented young lady of Altoona, is visiting friends in Lemont.

Miss Mary Fisher, of Unionville, departed a few days ago for Philadelphia, where she will attend school.

Miss Candor and a lady friend from Lock Haven arrived on Tuesday to attend the Maitland-Garman wedding.

Oscar A Williams, formerly of Bald Eagle Valley, has located at State College, where he will engage in the jewelry and watch making business.

Mr. George Bible departed on Saturday for Fulton county to give some elocutionary entertainments, leaving his wife and child here during his absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Brower, of Bloomsburg, came over to Bellefonte in a private conveyance last week and are guests at the residence of their daughter, Mrs. Howard Lingle.

Mr. John Voris, of Northumberland, arived in Bellefonte Tuesday evening and went on to Snow Shoe next morning, on a business trip. While here he was the guest of Francis Speer.

Two citizens of Moshannon who called on Monday and examined part of the art of making newspapers were Jackson Watson and John A. Yeager. We hope that these gentlemen will favor us with another visit.

Mr. J. T. Barton, the young and energetic Republican of Unionville, favored us with a most agreeable call on Monday. He says the Republicans of Unionville are solid for their party ticket, and in this respect the Republicans of that place always maintain an excellent reputation.

While Hon. Henry K. Boyer was in Bellefonte on Monday he called at this office in company with Gen. Hastings. He is a handsome, agreeable gentleman and made a most favorable impression. He was speaker of the house of Representatives and will be the next State Treasurer of Pennsylvania.

Charley Noll, who was injured so seriously several weeks ago by the fall of a telephone pole on which he was at the time, has so far recovered that he walked all the way from his home to the depot—fully a half mile—on Tuesday. He was kind enough to favor us with a visit. He looks surprisingly well, has lost only ten pounds in weight and when he becomes somewhat sunburned again will look as he did before the accident. Of course, the injuries to his jaw and leg will require a long time to heal, so that those members are perfectly sound.

An Appeal for the Johnstown Schools.

SPRING MILLS, PA., Sept. 27, 1889.

Strong appeals for help from the school authorities of Johnstown and the other flood districts of the Conemaugh Valley have reached me.

Their need of help is extreme and I trust that our teachers and schools, and friends of education in general will respond promptly and liberally.

Please send contributions to Prof. D. M. Lieb, Bellefonte, designating how much is for Johnstown and how much for the other districts.

D. M. WOLF, Co., Supt.

A Big String of Squirrels.

On Thursday Mr. Foster Williams was up the Bald Eagle hunting for squirrels and found them. Not only that, but he brought home the handsomest string of squirrels of the season, all evidence of his own skill as a squirrel hunter. There were ten gray squirrels and eight black ones—each one fat and handsome. Mr. Williams shot them all on Thursday. It is the best achievement of the season for one hunter and Mr. Williams is to be congratulated.

Fatal Accident to Lester Markle.

Mr Lester Markle, a well known citizen of Hublersburg, was engaged on Saturday in subduing a vicious horse, having with him in the buggy a friend named Fisher. He was thrown from the buggy and received fatal injuries, from which he died at 7 o'clock on Sunday evening. Mr. Markle was a son of Joseph Markle. He leaves a wife and three children.

Death of Jackson Clevenstine.

A very sudden death occurred at Hublersburg on Sunday night. Mr. Jackson Clevenstine, of that place, had gone to start the fire in the church stove, when he suddenly dropped dead. He was about 70 years of age and was very highly respected.
